Serving the people for 94 years

In Brief

Back in business

The area is slowly but surely recovering from the worst summer storm that has hit this area in recent years. Latest to report that it is "back in business" is the Social Security Office that serves Belleville, Romulus and the area.

"We're happy to announce that the Social Security Offices located at 27407 Michigan Ave. are open and 'it's business as usual,' said Robert Long, branch manager. "The repairs have been completed."

The Social Security Department handles all applications and complaints dealing with retirement, survivors' claims, disability, Medicare and supplemental income pertaining to Social Security.

She needs help

A woman who had been living in a dilapidated car in Edward Hines Parkway has been befriended by a Wayne resident. The resident took in the woman and her son, however, the recent storm has left the woman without a mattress and little food. If you can help, please contact this newspaper and leave a telephone number where we can reach you.

Services for Mayor's father

Services will be held at 1 p.m. today at Baum Funeral Home in Romulus for William F. Oakley, father of Romulus Mayor, William Oakley.

Mr. Oakley, 82, died Sunday.

A lifelong resident of Romulus, Mr. Oakley is survived by his wife, Josephine; three daughters, Mrs. Robert (Bernice) Newton, Mrs. Harvey (Betty) Rhodes and Mrs. Leon (Shirley) Gilbert; one son, William M.; one sister, Mrs. Mabel Hivley and two brothers, Joseph and George. He is also survived by 17 grandchildren and 17 great grandchildren.

Officiating at the service will be The Rev. Susan DeFoe of Canton with interment at Romulus Cemetery at Shook and Tobine roads in Romulus.

Mr. Oakley was born in Romulus on Jan. 7, 1898 and was a self-employed carpenter.

Wagon wheels & 4-H parades

Everyone, the saying goes, loves a parade. And there will be a parade with clowns, bands, floats, pretty girls — and much more — next week when the County Fair comes alive in Belleville. You'll find a special in today's edition that has all the information for a fun-filled week.

Parade to kick off annual 4-H festivities

If you're a parade enthusiast, then circle Sunday on your calendar.

At 2 p.m. that day the annual Wayne County 4-H Fair will kick off with a parade through the streets of downtown Belleville.

The parade precedes the official opening of the fair, slated for 5 p.m. Monday at the 4-H fairgrounds on Quirk Road in Van Buren Township. The fair will run through Aug. 16.

The fair gives young people an opportunity to display their 4-H projects and the residents of the community a chance to show off their crafts and specialties in an open class building.

There will be judging of foods, flowers and non-perishables on Monday, while the animal judging will take place on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Tuesday also has been set aside as Senior Citizens Day, with Children's Day planned for Thursday. The fair will close out with the draft horse judging on Friday and open class shows and an antique tractor pull on Saturday.

New in the livestock division is a sponsorship program for sheep and swine. A 4-H member asks a business or individual to purchase a feeder market animal, which the member cares for and raises to sell at the fair's livestock auction.

This year the auction will be held at 6 p.m. Thursday. Registration begins at 5 p.m., and individuals and businesses are encouraged to participate in the auction.

Participants in this year's sponsorship program included Flag's Restaurant of Belleville, Ed Kuzel, Bartz Animal Hospital, Country Sizzler, Wayne Bank, Carl Herring, Fred Spolinski, The Red Wagon Inc., Farmers Grain and Feed Mill, Alie Rae, Vachler Psychiatric Center, Dental Radiographic Service, Steve Jelosity, Gibson Insulation and Detroit Drop Die.

So if you like a parade, don't miss the fair opener Sunday. And if you like a fair, visit the 4-H fairgrounds on Quirk Road off the North I-95 Service Drive west of Belleville Road.

AWOL Marine charged in B&E

An Aug. 13 pre-trial examination date has been set for 18-year-old David Alan Arrington, arraigned last week on a charge of breaking and entering of a home on Halecreek St., Romulus.

According to Wayne County Sheriff's Det. Frank Burton, officer in charge of the case, the suspect was apprehended by the homeowner, Carol Morrison, after a short chase from the residence.

Burton said the incident occurred shortly after Ms. Morrison had retired for the night. She told police she heard a scratching noise and breathing at the bedroom window about 3:30 a.m. She pretended to be asleep, snoring loudly, and the noise ceased, only to resume a few minutes later.

The Morrison home had been broken into on July 5, Burton said, and Ms. Morrison had obtained a .32 caliber automatic from her father. She had retrieved it from its hiding place under her mattress, when she first heard the noise.

Ms. Morrison continued to feign sleep, and told the police that once again the noise subsided. However, shortly thereafter she heard a disturbance in her living room.

Ms. Morrison apparently went to investigate and found the suspect standing in the living room, near where a lamp had been turned on. She told police she shouted for the man to stop, however, he turned, as if to flee through the living room window. Burton said Ms. Morrison apparently pointed the gun at the

In woman's slaying

Jury finds Ross guilty

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

A Sumpter Township man, more recently living in Romulus, was sentenced Monday in Wayne County Circuit Court to life imprisonment for the murder of his live-in girlfriend.

Convicted of first-degree murder after a 10-day jury trial was, Sam Ross, 55. Presiding Judge Thomas J. Foley called the murder trial "a gruesome case."

Ross was accused of tying Ruth May Hayes, 40, of Inkster, to the rear bumper of her car and dragging her around a field in Sumpter Township on May 23 of this year until she died.

Judge Foley said Ross would not be eligible for parole for at least 20 years, adding that it would be "doubtful" after that period of time.

Mrs. Hayes' body was found by a young motorcyclist living across the road who on the previous day had noticed a car driving around in circles and raising large clouds of dust.

The woman's body was found off the road in a field south of Arkona Road, between Sumpter and Martinsville roads, according to Det. Sgt. Alan Anderson and Det. Sgt. Jay Dorenbecker, who handled the case for the Flat Rock State Police Post.

Judge Foley, on the day following Ross' conviction said Ross never admitted his guilt in the woman's death, but said "circumstantial evidence was overwhelming."

The judge said evidence pointed to the fact that Mrs. Hayes was alive when she was pulled behind her car.

Ross was arrested at the home of another girlfriend in Romulus on May 25, two days after the death of Mrs. Hayes. He offered no resistance to Anderson and Dorenbecker, police said.

From information given by Judge Foley and the two police officers, Mrs. Hayes had left her husband and four children in Inkster and had lived with Ross for about two years in Sumpter Township near where her body was discovered.

In December of 1979, she left him to return to her family in Inkster. Ross then kidnapped her and her two sisters a month later and was later convicted on three counts of kidnapping and felonious assault.

On Friday, May 23, he was on a work furlough from a halfway house in Detroit and went to his Sumpter residence where Mrs. Hayes had gone to get her clothes and personal effects.

At this time, Anderson said, Ross was involved with a woman in Romulus and had been helping her around the house when on furlough.

Police investigation speculated that Ross tied Mrs. Hayes by her neck to the rear bumper of her car and dragged her around the rough open field until she died.

Storm strikes again

Saturday, a weaker version of last month's violent thunderstorm again struck western and southern Wayne County, inflicting brief electrical power outages.

The most recent storm came with no word yet from President Jimmy Carter to a request from Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken to declare hard-hit portions of the state an "emergency," thus clearing the way for millions of dollars in federal aid for damages last month.

About 12,500 homes lost electricity Saturday morning in western and southern Wayne County, the Ann Arbor area, the west side of Detroit, and Oakland and Macomb counties, said Fred Sullivan, state director of media relations for Edison Co.

He said many homes had power restored later in the day and that all power outages were returned to normal by midnight of the same day the storm hit.

South of Belleville on Sumpter Road, between Bemis and Hull roads, eight telephone poles were felled by the storm. All have been repaired and telephone service brought back to normal.

A rough breakdown, according to Sullivan, showed that western and southern Wayne County suffered 8,000 power outages, Ann Arbor, 2,200; west Detroit, a few hundred; Oakland County, 1,500; and Macomb, about 50.

Sullivan said electrical power has been restored in all areas hit by the savage thunderstorm last month.

The Governor's office recently released a report which showed that 10 Michigan counties struck by storms July 15, 16 and 20 suffered an estimated $177.3 million in damages.

Public damage amounted to $17.1 million, private damage was $130.2 million, and agricultural damage was $3.8 million, the Governor's report disclosed.

Counties where damage was heaviest were: Allegan, Berrien, Calhoun, Cass, Jackson, Ottawa, St.

GOP delegates have kind words about city

Letters pour in from all over country

Approximately 600 people were officially greeted, welcomed and served refreshments at the City Hospitality Room set up in the Airport Holiday Inn during the four days of the Republican National Convention.

These people included delegates to the convention from Michigan, Puerto Rico, Alaska, Guam; representatives from various news media; State Republican Party workers and guests from other states visiting Michigan for the convention.

Sandwiches, chips, cookies and Pepsi Cola were prepared and served by volunteer workers from the City, Chamber, service clubs and city residents.

All was provided without cost to the City.

The welcome kits you received tonight were distributed to all convention delegates staying in the City of Romulus.

Following are some excerpts from the letters received to date:

"The Convention is over, but we will always remember the warmth and generosity of the people of Romulus."

Marie E. Wentela

Dearborn, Mi.

"Romulus is no longer 'the place around the airport' to me, and I'm sure, to many of the other Michigan delegates. The warmth and friendliness accorded us was just great, and made us feel that we were 'coming home' every evening after the convention."

Alberta Shord

Dryden, Mi.

"My husband and I have attended three other National Conventions and have never experienced such a heart-warming welcome."

Mrs. Roland A. Helwig

Kalamazoo, Mi.

"The entire metropolitan area made us proud to be the host delegation at the Republican National Convention. But the citizens of Romulus made us lucky by their personal welcome."

I've a warm spot in my heart for Romulus."

Lou Ann Taylor

Traverse City, Mi.

"Your hospitality to the delegates of the Republican Party was superb. Your warmth, friendliness and good cheer is the outstanding memory I will have of the Republican Convention. I have written to Ronald Reagan to tell him about it."

Mrs. Charlotte Buchanan

Redford, Mi.

"Unfortunately, between meetings of our delegation, committee sessions and events downtown, there was not too much time to avail ourselves of all your city has to offer. We'll have to come back!"

Louis M. Rupp

Potomac, Md.

"In all honesty, I couldn't believe that anyone would stay up till one or two o'clock in the morning to await our return from the convention hall in order to provide us with something to eat and drink. The hospitality extended by your citizens made us all very proud to be part of the Michigan delegation."

Ward Kuhn

Traverse City, Mi.

"The packet your friendly citizens gave us... Chamber of Commerce publication with the beautiful sunrise, the Romulus Public Information Office booklet and other useful pamphlets made me aware that 'THERE REALLY IS A CITY OF ROMULUS.' Since I did not get a chance to visit all of your restaurants in Romulus during convention week I intend to do so in the near future."

Patt Barbour

Dearborn Heights, Mi.

"We found it hard to believe that with the disaster you encountered, everyone still took the time to make visitors welcome. The whole staff involved in your Hospitality Room should be congratulated."

Snowmobilers face law changes

Snowmobile owners and prospective owners should be alert to several changes made recently in the state's snowmobile registration law.

The new law requires snowmobiles to be registered with the Secretary of State when purchased or when ownership is transferred.

Snowmobiles need not be registered if they are used only on lands owned by the snowmobile owner or if the vehicle is used only in a safety education program conducted by a certified snowmobile safety instructor.

This revised registration system will help to ensure that all snowmobiles are registered. This improved system could reduce the need for law enforcement services by the Department of Natural Resources.

The new law also raises the snowmobile registration system from $9 to $15. The registrations are for three years.

The $6 increase will be deposited in a recreational snowmobile trail improvement fund administered by the Department of Natural Resources. The fund is used exclusively for the improvement of public snowmobile trails and other non-conflicting public recreational purposes.

A portion of snowmobile registration fees had been placed in the State's general fund and expended from the general fund for the support of a system of snowmobile trails. The new system is more direct and easier to administer.

However, the amount of money that was available has not been sufficient to keep up with the growing demand for an expanding system of well-maintained snowmobile trails. The fee increase will result in approximately $650,000 a year for snowmobile trail improvements.

The remaining $9 of the registration fee will continue to be deposited in the general fund. The Department of Natural Resources had been required to give 25 percent to 50 percent of the money to counties, cities, villages and townships which apply for grants for snowmobile trail development and maintenance. The Department may also pay the local governments up to 100 percent of the cost of initial signs for snowmobile routes.

However, many local governments have been reluctant to take on the responsibility of developing and maintaining snowmobile trails since it often does require some additional expense for them.

The new law allows the state grants to be made available to non-profit incorporated snowmobile organizations, as well as local units of government. This will enable snowmobile projects to be undertaken in areas where local officials are not inclined to take part in the grant program.

The increase in snowmobile registration fees will directly benefit snowmobilers by providing needed additional funding for trail development. Improvement of existing trails and development of new ones would be helpful for Michigan's important tourist industry.

Allowing local snowmobile groups to be eligible for trail development grants will permit interested citizens to initiate improvements and develop trails without having to obtain a local government to act as a sponsor, as had been the case.

The bill was supported by the Department of Natural Resources, the Michigan Association of Recreational Snowmobilers, the Michigan International Snowmobile Association and the Michigan Snowmobile Council.

Also of interest to sportsmen is another new law which opens the hunting season for ruffed grouse on September 15 throughout the State. It will end on January 1 in the Lower Peninsula and on November 14 in the Upper Peninsula. The season would be closed, as it is now, during firearm deer season, but open during muzzle-loader deer season.

The hunting season has been staggered — from October 20 to December 31 in the southern Lower Peninsula, September 1 to December 31 in the northern Lower Peninsula, and September 15 to November 3 in the Upper Peninsula.

Insect study planned

"What's Bugging You?" is the subject of a family nature program to be presented at the Nature Center of Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock on Sunday, August 17 at 2 p.m.

Naturalist Mike George will assist visitors in investigating a few of the thousands of insects which inhabit our area. Sweep nets will be used to capture these six-legged wonders for close-up observation. After a few minutes of identification and study, the insects will be released.

This program is "free". Vehicle entry permits are required (Annual: regular - $7, senior citizen - $2 or Daily - $2).

MESC reopens Romulus office after clean-up

Storm caused massive roof, flood damages

When the now infamous July 16 storm swept through the Romulus area, it took with it part of the roof from the Michigan Employment Security Commission's (MESC) Job Service office, 38333 Van Born Rd., and left MESC staff with a massive cleanup job.

As Victor Mayette, manager of the Romulus office, explains the strong winds from the storm tore holes in the roofing material, allowing rain water to pour in damaging ceiling tiles on the inside as well as some of the office's files.

In addition to the holes in the roof, the wind tore off two large air vents hurling them into the parking lot where they damaged several parked cars. Fortunately, no one was injured.

The wind also knocked out the power and lights, forcing the office to close to the public for the remainder of the day. Many of the 80 MESC staff at the office, however, remained to help cleanup.

"My staff did an outstanding job," Mayette said. "Everybody pitched in and helped. Some even stayed to help knowing that their own homes were damaged."

Although cleanup operations began immediately, an important concern for Mayette and his staff was the continued payment of unemployment benefits to the 10,000 people who are handled by the office each week. After a fast search for available locations, the MESC moved its claims paying operation to UAW Local 900 Hall, 38110 Michigan Ave., and began paying benefits from there the day after the storm.

At the Romulus MESC office, staff sloshed through water soaked carpet picking up ruined ceiling tiles and other debris and moving files to drier quarters next door in the Department of Social Services office.

For nearly a week, the MESC office was left without power, forcing staff to work by light from Coleman lanterns, candles and several lights powered by portable generators.

While the cleanup proceeded, staff sorted through water damaged files, processed unemployment claims and administered Job Service help from the Social Services office and from tables set up on the lawn and in the parking lot.

By Thursday, July 24, eight days after the storm, the Romulus MESC staff had moved back into their office and reopened to the public — a little wet under the gills but glad to have a dry office and a new roof overhead.

In car theft

Suspect is arrested

A young Romulus man who was arrested early Monday morning by Pittsfield Township police faces three charges in connection with the theft of a car from his landlord.

Arrested was Donald Groves, 19, who police said lived with Edward Haiska at 38315 Pennsylvania Rd. Det. Frank Burton of the Wayne County Sheriff's Dept. said Pittsfield police arrested Groves about 3 a.m. for drunk driving. A radio check revealed the vehicle had been stolen about 11 p.m. Sunday from the Haiska residence, Burton said.

Groves also was charged with possession of a firearm in a vehicle, the officer said. The weapon is believed to be the same one stolen from the Haiska house, a .22 caliber semiautomatic rifle.

Also taken, Burton said, was about $200 in cash.

According to the officer, Groves admitted the thefts and will face prosecution for the offenses.

The officer said Haiska told them he arrived home about 11 p.m. Sunday, heard his car start up in the garage and saw Groves pull away in the vehicle.

When officers arrested Groves, they observed that the car had been damaged in an accident, said the detective.

Youth injured in scuffle

A Van Buren Township teenager was beaten Sunday night, police reported, when he tried to stop an older man from using profane language in front of his girlfriend.

Taken to Wayne County General Hospital about 8:30 p.m. was David Orskey, 18, of 14250 Martinsville Rd., said Det. Frank Burton of the Wayne County Sheriff's Dept.

Det. Burton said Orskey was bleeding from the head, nose and mouth. Hospital authorities reported Monday morning that the youth was released following treatment of his injuries.

The officer said investigation disclosed that two carloads of young males had purchased some items at a party store on the southwest corner of Huron River Drive and Hannan Road. As they left the store, one of the men used offensive language to Orskey.

The youth was filling his bicycle tire with air and was accompanied by his girlfriend, a 17-year-old Belleville girl. He asked the man to refrain from using such language and was immediately struck and beaten by the unidentified assailant, Burton said.

Witnesses described the attacker as black, about 6 feet, one inch in height, weighing about 180 pounds, and who had a freckled face. His companion was described as 6 feet, 3 inches tall, weighing about 150 pounds, and wearing a short Afro hair style.

Burton said a bystander who tried to intervene was shoved aside by Orskey's assailant.

Ed McWilliams, who lives east across Hannan Road in Romulus and who operates a pony ride concession, said he witnessed the incident from his home.

As the men went to get into their cars, McWilliams said he saw Orskey lying on the ground injured. When he went to help, he said two of the men jumped on him and one began choking him. McWilliams' son, David, 17, and other persons at the scene stepped in to help and the men fled in their cars, McWilliams said.

He said four men were in one car and three in the second and that all were black.

McWilliams said Huron Metro Park, south of the party store and on the west side of Hannan Road, has been the scene of numerous disturbances.

"About three weeks ago, a half dozen black youths were fighting and hitting each other with ballbats," he said.

Upset at the frequency of fights at the park, McWilliams told Associated Newspapers that he planned to visit Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley.

"I am going to ask him about closing down the park," said McWilliams.

He said bystanders did get a license number on one of the two fleeing cars. Monday, Burton said a license check showed the car to be issued to an Inkster resident living on Colgate Street. He said the car was a maroon 1978 Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

The detective said officers were still investigating the incident and hoped to make an arrest soon.

Marine charged in B&E

The suspect then fled the home by going over the couch and through the open front window, followed by Ms. Morrison, who yelled for neighbors to call the police. She apparently caught up with Arrington five houses away, and ordered him to stop.

The suspect did so, surrendering to Ms. Morrison, who was unaware that her gun had jammed with two bullets left in the weapon. She made Arrington return to her home, where an off-duty police officer and the Wayne County Sheriff's Department responded to the calls for help.

Burton said the suspect was transported to Wayne County General Hospital, where he was treated for wounds in the leg, hand and buttocks. He was arraigned at the hospital later that day on the breaking and entering charge, which carries a maximum sentence of 15 years imprisonment. Bond was set at $25,000.

Burton added that his investigation turned up that Arrington, a member of the Marine Corps, has been reported as away without leave (AWOL) from Camp Pendleton, Calif.

At Valparaiso

Romulus engineer appointed dean

Dr. James T. Scroggin, former chairman of the industrial and mechanical engineering department at the University of Wisconsin-Platteville, has been appointed new dean of the College of Engineering at Valparaiso University, VU President Robert V. Schnabel has announced.

In announcing the appointment, Dr. Schnabel said, "We are very pleased to have Dr. Scroggin join us. His excellent qualifications and experience equip him well for the responsibilities he has assumed. We look forward to working with him in the further development of the College of Engineering and the advancement of the University in the 1980's."

Dr. Scroggin, a native of Romulus, received his B.S. degree in mechanical engineering from the Indiana Institute of Technology, his M.S. degree in mechanical engineering from Michigan State University, and his Ph.D. degree from the University of Cincinnati.

Prior to taking the Platteville position, he was professor of mechanical engineering at Ohio Northern University, Ada, Ohio. He has also taught at the University of Cincinnati and Michigan State University.

He has written articles for the journals of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Society for Engineering Education, and Linkage Design. He has also authored monographs.

He holds memberships in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Society of Manufacturing Engineers, American Society of Engineering Education, and the Milwaukee chapters of the Society of Experimental Stress Analysis and the Society of Reliability Engineers.

Storm

Joseph, Van Buren, Washtenaw and Wayne, the report said.

Milliken first wrote the President on July 23, and followed up with a second letter July 25 documenting his earlier request.

The governor stressed the state's dire financial condition - a deficit of $120 million - and increasing unemployment in his letter to Carter. He added that proposed federal cutbacks in the budget made matters even worse.

Specifically, Milliken asked for federal assistance in the 10 affected counties as follows:

1-Aid for emergency debris cleanup to reduce immediate threats to life, property, and public health and safety from fallen trees and limbs.

2-Low interest disaster recovery and economic injury loans by the Small Business Administration for repair to homes, business and farms.

3-Low interest loans from the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

"In summary, the local units of government in the disaster-affected areas and their citizens have been greatly affected by these severe thunder and wind storms," explained the governor. "The effects of the storms will be felt for some time to come."

Milliken concluded his letter to the President by pointing out the strain on already overburdened local budgets to pay for cleanup operations and the inevitable rise in utility rates.

9 million work in construction

Small, minority businesses asked to bid for jail work

Wayne County's Office of Human Relations has started a county-wide search for small and minority businesses qualified to bid on nearly $9 million worth of construction work for Phase III of the new $37 million county jail, Chairman Samuel Turner of the County Board of Commissioners announced today.

According to Turner, of the 160 small and minority businesses already certified by the County's Office of Human Relations, less than 40 percent are involved in construction-type operations. "This means," he said, "that we've got to start looking real hard for more companies that fall within this category."

"We're quite certain," Turner said, "that there are dozens of small and minority businesses scattered around the county unaware of the many jobs available to them through the county's 'Set-Aside' Ordinance."

Turner explained that county commissioners in 1978 made it mandatory to set aside no less than 25 percent of all county construction projects for small and minority organizations. In this case the amount available for bidding by small groups is nearly $9 million. "This means a lot of jobs for a lot of people," he said.

An initial meeting of minority and small business owners has been scheduled for August 7 at 10:00 A.M. at the jail site, Monroe and St. Antoine to discuss qualification problems. Attending the meeting will be representatives from the Small and Minority Business Advisory Committee, Turner, members of the county's Corrections Committee, chaired by Commissioner Arthur M. Carter, and representatives of Barton-Malow, hired recently by the Board of Commissioners to oversee the $37 million jail project.

Thomas Madden, Vice-President of Barton-Malow, said blueprints will be sent out about August 11 to all interested bidders followed by a second meeting with Small and Minority business owners August 15 in the Auditorium of the City-County Building to answer their questions concerning the "set-aside" ordinance and how to submit and qualify for bids, etc.

Madden continued: "We have another meeting tentatively scheduled August 22 to explain architectural and construction segments of the blueprints to interested bidders, and we hope to start accepting initial bids by the first of September. Portions of the project will begin October 1," he added.

In explaining the various levels of bidding, Madden said construction projects are broken down into three segments: Mechanical, electrical and architectural. Mechanical includes heating, ventilation, air conditioning, plumbing, fire protection, temperature controls, etc.; electrical refers to wiring, light fixtures, switches, starters, etc.; and architectural includes concrete work, masonry, aluminum, glass, hardware, doors, ceiling, plaster, dry-wall and similar construction. "There is also a need for small and minority suppliers of building, electrical and mechanical materials as well," he added.

Madden said there will be different due dates for bidding and, with any luck, "we expect to have the new jail up within 30 months."

Handicapped kids offered screening

Infants and toddlers 0-5 years of age with an identified disability who reside in the Wayne-Westland, Romulus, Van Buren or Inkster school districts are requested to register now for a summer screening appointment which will be scheduled during August 18-22.

The screening will be held at Wilson School, 1225 S. Wildwood, Westland.

The phone numbers to call are 721-1890 or 722-3268, (a.m. only).

The purpose of the screening is to determine eligibility for school placement and/or supportive services according to Michigan State Law.

State law requires that services be made available to persons birth through 25 years of age with mental, emotional, physical, health, hearing, vision, speech, developmental or learning problems.

Services offered depend upon disability but include specially trained teachers, physical and occupational therapists, home and parent programs as well as classroom enrollment.

His civic record includes director of the Employers Association, and of the Metropolitan Y.M.C.A. He is president of the Boy's Club of Metropolitan Detroit and will shortly be elevated to presidency of the Detroit Athletic Club.

Rotary governor to speak to New Boston club members

Governor David C. Clark, leader of Rotary International District 640, will make his official visit to the New Boston Rotary Club at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, August 19, it is reported by Raymond Nickol 1980-81 President of the Club.

The local Club is one of 47 in District 640 (Wayne, Monroe, Lenawee counties in Michigan and Essex County, Ontario). There are more than 2500 Rotarians in these 47 clubs.

Rotary International was founded more than 75 years ago in Chicago by Paul Harris and three business friends who recognized the need for an organization to help promote the concept of services to others, better ethical values in business, and friendship and fellowship among business and professional people.

There are now more than 800,000 Rotarians throughout the free world.

Gov. Clark joined Detroit Rotary in 1962 and was club president in 1974-75. Born in Florida, he attended Principia College in Elmhurst, Illinois where he received a degree in Economics in 1950. He served in the United States Army and earned his First Lieutenant bars as a paratrooper who made nearly 50 jumps during the military career.

Immediately after graduation, he joined Jervis B. Webb Company, the world's largest manufacturer of engineered material handling equipment. Currently, he is Vice President-Treasurer of the firm.

His civic record includes director of the Employers Association, and of the Metropolitan Y.M.C.A. He is president of the Boy's Club of Metropolitan Detroit and will shortly be elevated to presidency of the Detroit Athletic Club.

Focus on photography

The flash and you

By DONALD GREEN

USING BOUNCE FLASH

Bounce flash is nothing more than a variation of the off camera technique we talked about last week in which you moved the flash to one side of the subject while keeping it pointed at the center of your subject. In the bounce flash method one would aim the flash at a highly reflective surface, such as a wall or ceiling instead of at the subject. To calculate bounce flash ex-posure, you can start by opening your lens up two or three f-stops. This will compensate for the additional distance the light must travel.

You'll find that bracketing your shots will help get just the right exposure.

CLOSE-UP FLASH

If you're working so close to a subject that the aperture required for a correct exposure is beyond the minimum aperture of your lens (ex.: your camera lens stops at f.16 but correct exposure is f.32) you are going to have to cut the light down some way.

I find using a neutral density filter works the best. This is a filter that is placed in front of the lens to cut down the light intensity.

A 2x ND filter will decrease the light hitting the film by one f-stop; a 4x ND filter by two f-stops. If you don't have an ND filter to use a clean white handkerchief will do. By placing one handkerchief over the flash head you lose approximately one f-stop; two handkerchiefs, two f-stops.

Close-up photography is a whole new world so experiment with it. You'll like what you see.

If you have a question about photography write me at this newspaper and I will try my best to find an answer for you.

& Animals

Preventative dental care

By K. BARTKIEWICZ

Preventative Dental Care

Animals have hard enamel on their teeth and rarely get cavities. They still require occasional care for other reasons. They may require a tooth extraction or an abscess to be treated, or a tartar buildup to be cleaned.

Dogs and cats develop two sets of teeth. They have baby teeth which are pushed out by the adult teeth. Sometimes this does not work properly and the animal may have two rows of teeth. The baby teeth should then be removed under an anesthetic by a veterinarian. If these baby teeth are not removed, they push the adult teeth out of alignment and allow tartar to build up faster between the rows of teeth.

When a dog or cat breaks a tooth, it generally causes them little discomfort. One exception to this is when an infection goes up the root canal and an abscess forms. The abscess follows a line of least resistance.

On the upper jaw, the abscess is above the tooth. It goes up through the bone rather than down through the harder tooth.

Many times these tooth abscesses drain out just below the eye. The treatment is to remove the broken tooth under an anesthetic and place the animal on antibiotics.

The mouth can have a foul odor for a number of reasons. The most common reason being tartar on the teeth. Tartar builds on the teeth, then it calcifies and continues to build pushing up the gums and the supporting bone.

The teeth will become loose and may bleed causing the animal discomfort. Most dogs and cats need to have tartar removed as they grow older. This is done by a veterinarian under an anesthetic.

Some dogs and cats may need to have their teeth cleaned often, while others rarely require cleaning. Hard foods do help to decrease tartar buildup.

Heart attack victims sought in med study

Volunteers are urgently needed to help combat America's number one killer, atherosclerosis.

This disease is primarily responsible for heart attacks, strokes and related fatal diseases that account annually for some one million deaths or 53 percent of all deaths in the United States.

The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute is conducting a program at three participating medical institutions, including the University of Minnesota, to determine whether lowering blood cholesterol levels will reduce the risk of heart attacks.

The University is seeking persons 28 through 64 years of age, who have had only one heart attack in the past 5 years. All such persons are asked to call the University of Minnesota Hyperlipidemia Study collect at 612-376-4494 for more information.

Repair crews restore service to state

Storm had knocked out electricity to 263,000 customers

By mid-week of this past week, repair crews were restoring service to the last of more than a quarter million Consumers Power company customers whose electric service was interrupted by one of the most devastating series of storms ever to strike Michigan's Lower Peninsula. Some 263,000 Consumers Power electric customers lost service between Tuesday, July 15, and early Monday, July 21. Four separate storms moved across the state during that 5½-day period. Winds reaching 80 miles per hour blew thousands of trees and tree limbs over power lines and caused extensive damage, along with severe lightning, to other electric distribution equipment. The storms were by far the worst for the utility company since ice storms caused power outages to about 233,000 electric customers in March 1976. The company estimates that storm damage and related costs will amount to $5 million. Well over one thousand Consumer Power employees, assisted by at least 60 repair crews from contractors and utilities in neighboring states, together with hundreds of pieces of heavy equipment staged a 24-hour, around the clock cleanup operation. The nature of the storms brought repair crews from one part of the state to the other, and back again. Now, barring still more violent weather, restoration of electric service to those customers affected by the storms is virtually complete, according to Howard J. Jensen, Consumers Power's manager of electric distribution. "We were in an all-out effort from the beginning to restore service to our customers," Jensen said from an office next to the "storm center" on the fourth floor of the company's Jackson headquarters. The storm room is a communications and technical support center from which damage is assessed and repair efforts are coordinated. Storms moving toward Michigan are plotted and their activity is monitored. Six hours before the first storm hit on Tuesday morning, July 15, Jensen said his department already had requested several operating headquarters to place repair crews on standby, expecting the worst. The preparation paid off. That storm hit Grand Rapids first, knocking out power to 32,000 customers. Then it moved east causing 9,000 additional outages. Before damage from that storm was repaired, a second, more violent band of thunderstorms struck Kalamazoo Wednesday morning, moving east through Battle Creek and Jackson causing 105,000 customer outages in a 4,000 square mile area.

I would personally like to invite all of you in the Belleville area to an Open House for the new Bartell Chiropractic Center on Sunday, August 10, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Spinal pressure and tension on sensitive, delicate nerves may cause many diseases. Chiropractors are especially trained to analyze and correct spinal distortions, thereby preventing further disability, suffering and expense.

Chiropractic has been the method of choice for restoring health and vitality to millions of families throughout the world. More and more intelligent people everywhere are realizing good health is gained and maintained only when a normal flow of nerve energy flows from the brain, down the spinal cord and out between important spinal vertebrae to our vital body organs and tissues.

Regardless of the health problem you or any member of your family may have, it is entirely possible that your family chiropractor can replace suffering and disease with glowing health and happiness.

They're stationed 'round the world

Airman David R. Flatt, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas H. Flatt of Cookeville, Tenn., and whose wife Janice is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Perry of South Haggerty Road, Belleville, has been assigned to the Great Lakes Naval Air Station, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During his six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations. In addition he earned credits towards an associate or applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Flatt now will receive specialized training in the communications-electronics field.

He is a 1976 graduate of Belleville High School.

Also in the armed forces: Navy Personnelman Seaman Daryl L. Quifton, the son of Milo D. and Jo A. Quifton of Hamilton, Belleville, has graduated from Personnelman School.

The school is located at the Naval Technical Training Center in Meridian, Miss. During the 9-week course, Quifton received instruction on the procedures for preparation and updating of personnel records. In addition, he studied general Naval Office administration methods and the techniques employed for personnel interviewing.

A 1976 graduate of Belleville High School, he joined the Navy in July 1976.

Airman Randy S. Gawne, the son of Charles C. Gawne of Standish, Mich., and Mary A. Gawne of Forestdale, Romulus, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force missile mechanic course conducted at Chanute Air Force Base, Ill.

Graduates of the course studied maintenance of missiles and related supported equipment, and earned credits towards an associated degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Gawne will now serve at Elgin Air Force Base, Fla.

He is a 1979 graduate of Romulus High School.

Walter E. Le Couteur, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Le Couteur of Cornell Street, Romulus, has been commissioned a second lieutenant through the Air Force ROTC program, and earned a bachelor's degree at the University of Puget Sound, in Tacoma, Wash.

Lt. Le Couteau will be assigned to Francis E. Warren Air Force Base, Cheyenne, Wyo.

The lieutenant is a 1965 graduate of Southgate High School, Southgate.

Airman Terry K. Albrecht, the son of Linda M. Weeks of Billings, Mont., has graduated from the U.S. Air Force aircraft maintenance training course at Sheppard Air Force Base, Tex.

Graduates of the course were trained in aircraft maintenance, repair and service, and earned credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Airman Albrecht now will serve at Shaw Air Force Base, S.C.

The airman is a 1978 graduate of Huron High School, Ann Arbor. His father, Terry E. Albrecht, resides on Robbe Road in Belleville.

Marine Pvt. Donald T. Fecay, the son of Chuck Fecay of Belleville, and Pat S. Fecay of Stephanie, Romulus, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif.

During the 11-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill.

He joined the Marine Corps in January 1980.

Airman John A. Schenk Jr., the son of John A. Schenk Sr. of Brighton, has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relationships.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the communications-electronics systems field.

Airman Schenk is a 1975 graduate of Wayne Memorial High School, Wayne. His sister, Deborah L. Rowsey, resides on Hull Road in Belleville.

Pvt. Scott L. Davis, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton A. Davis of Liberty, Belleville, recently was assigned as a tapman with the 9th Field Artillery in Giessen, Germany.

Robert S. Turner, 17, entered the United States Air Force today, according to Technical Sergeant Dave Archer, the Air Force recruiter at 12855 Dix Rd.

Upon graduation from six weeks' basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., he will receive technical training in the mechanical aptitude area and be assigned to an Air Force duty station.

Robert is the son of Robert and Hazel Turner, 16130 Hoeft, Belleville.

Airman Daniel M. Sheldrake, son of Elizabeth M. Sheldrak of 15675 Isabelle, Romulus, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, here, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

Airman Sheldrake's grandfather, Leander H. Dupie Sr., resides at 13558 Jobin.

Scott Dyer, son of Robert F. Dyer of New Boston, has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of senior airman.

Airman Dyer is a security specialist at K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base, here.

He is a 1975 graduate of Romulus Senior High School, Romulus.

HOW DO I COMFORT PARENTS WHO HAVE LOST A CHILD?

I know of no more distressing news than to hear of a young person's death. The life of a child has great social value. The children are our future. We are moved by a child's general helplessness and feel that he has not had a chance to live as we feel he is entitled to.

The impact upon the family is tremendous. Parents often feel guilty and may even, for a time, hold themselves responsible. It is a time when that family needs all the love and attention that friends have to offer.

The best way to help, most of the time, is just to be there and listen. A grieving parent may ask, "Why did God do this to me?" or "What more could we have done?" You should let him talk. By expressing these feelings, the grieving parent is on his way to recovery.

Those of us who provide funeral services realize the special significance of the death of a child. We try to offer comfort and special attention to those in need of our services at all times. We welcome your questions and comments privately or through this column.

Romulus seniors plan trip to Canada

Want to tag along?

Although we've entered the last month of summer, there is still a lot of recreation ahead of you, says the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department.

The recreation department has organized several fun-filled programs, according to Dennis Davidson, parks and recreation director.

If archery is your sport, the recreation department has an archery league which will compete at Elmer Johnson Park. Archers need not be Romulus residents in order to take part. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Ted Holton at 941-3038.

If you're interested in officiating volleyball, touch football, softball, basketball and other sports, the recreation department has on its drawing boards a series of clinics which will help you prepare yourself to officiate games. Men and women are invited to sit in during the lessons.

The recreation department is also looking for teams that wish to participate in a "passing only" touch football league this fall. The proposed league will consist of six-man teams.

Leagues are being organized for both men and women teams. In the meantime, the Romulus Senior Citizens have scheduled a four-day trip to Elgin House on the shores of Lake Joseph in the heart of the Muskoka Lakes located in Canada.

Cost is $159 per person and eight meals are included in that price tag. Reservations are now being taken and the trip is scheduled for Sept. 7. Although "senior" citizens will get booking priority, they also have invited other adults to come along.

The seniors also have planned a day trip to Saugatuck for August 25. Cost is $36 per person which includes a meal, boat ride, a dupe buggy ride and sightseeing.

Seniors are sponsoring an "Euchre" card party between 4 to 7 p.m. on Thur., Aug. 7. All Euchre players are welcomed. There is no charge.

Macrame classes will begin 9:30 a.m. until noon, Aug. 7 for interested seniors. There is a 25 cents per session charge for seniors who are residents and 50 cents per session charge for non-residents.

The materials are not included, however, periodic trips are made to macrame shopping centers, rec. officials say.

For information on these or any other recreation program, please contact the recreation offices at 941-0666, extension 254 during the business hours.

Belleville wins a historian

Westland's loss is Belleville's gain...

Beth Taylor, a long-time member of the Westland Historical Commission, has moved from Westland and will reside in Belleville.

Mrs. Taylor was responsible for many of the unique historical displays at both the old and new Westland museums.

Focus is on Living

A Focus On Living (With Cancer) meeting will be held in the first floor nursing classroom at St. Mary's Hospital, 36475 Five Mile Road in Livonia on Wednesday, August 20, 1980 at 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of this self-help group is to bring together patients and family members who have questions or are experiencing problems as a result of living with cancer.

With the assistance of a nurse consultant and other resource persons, participants are encouraged to discuss their mutual problems in a positive manner.

For information, contact the American Cancer Society 557-5353.

Central Business reports on Renaissance

Goals are to achieve an economically viable shopping environment

A "Strategy and Design for Downtown Revitalization of Romulus" has just been completed by Christopher Wzaczny & Associates, Inc., community planners, and has been presented to and approved by the Romulus Central Business District Association.

The "Summary of Finding" of the market study indicates that the downtown Romulus market trade area is in a strong and viable position.

The economic assessment indicates that the market area will support additional businesses and that revitalization is needed.

The assessment reveals definite opportunities for development within downtown Romulus. The construction of the Romulus Towers strongly supports this positive outlook as does the current efforts of the Romulus Central Business District Association and the City of Romulus towards the upgrading of the downtown area.

The goals of the revitalization as outlined in the planners report is to achieve an economically viable and amenable shopping environment. The goals will be accomplished by a new downtown street scape design which will center along Goddard Road and Shook Road.

This will essentially be the heart of the commercial district. The intent of the street scape design is to establish a distinctive character which clearly communicates a pleasant shopping environment.

The theme of the street scape will be "Old Village Romulus" and will include pole mounted street lighting to reflect 19th and early 20th century periods, resurfaced streets, new sidewalks, street furniture compatible with the design, shade trees, more parking including angle parking and relocation of Shook Road on the south side of Goddard Road.

In addition to the street scape plan the strategy and design for downtown revitalization of Romulus as recommended by planners Christopher Wzaczny & Associates, Inc. call for certain building improvement guidelines for each of the commercial and office structures now in downtown Romulus and fronting on Goddard Road.

The recommended improvements for the commercial establishments would be an "Old Village Romulus" and would be compatible with the street scape plan.

In general the building improvement recommendations include brick work to be cleaned, painting of buildings with color selections harmonious to "Old Village Romulus". Also awnings were suggested in many cases as distinctive additions to store fronts which would tend to establish a distinctive and cohesive image for downtown.

Further, it was recommended that signs must work together and not individually to establish a distinctive downtown character. It is recommended that the large plastic and porcelain signs be eliminated.

The recommended signs would be constructed of wood and lit with carefully placed directional front lighting with gaudy lighting techniques avoided.

The Romulus Business District is pleased to report that it has the best of working relationships with the City administration and the council in the preparation of the planning study.

In fact their encouragement has been instrumental in the RCEDA progressing so rapidly.

Recently the Central Business District Association and Christopher

Wzaczny & Associates, Inc. presented to the City of Romulus Administration and the City Council the completed plan, "Strategy and Design for Downtown Revitalization of Romulus". The report was very favorably received and after the council has time to study the plan another council meeting will be held. At this meeting which will be held on August 12, 1980, 8:00 p.m. council chambers the RCEDA will recommend that the City council pass a resolution to formally support the plan to "Revitalize Downtown Romulus".

The City Council Mayor William Oakley and Grants Administrator, Pat Hogan, have already been working on the application of grant money which will enable the street scape plan to be implemented and hopefully in the near future funds will be available. The cost of building improvements as recommended by the planner will be paid for by the individual establishments.

The Romulus Central Business District Association is pleased to report that the planning of the renaissance of downtown Romulus is moving along as planned and hopefully will be completed in 1982.

An ex-ANP staff writer

PCHA names Community Relations Director

The new director of Community Relations for the Peoples Community Hospital Authority (PCHA) is Maureen S. Camps, 28, of Westland.

As community relations representative for the 5-hospital authority, Ms. Camps will act as media liaison, will participate in community activities as PCHA spokesperson, work with each hospital's staff and auxiliary group in cultivating good relationships with the public and in developing programs, and be involved in other communications projects.

In that role, Ms. Camps will have the responsibility of developing a community relations plan to bring the PCHA story to the community, as well as assisting each hospital with its promotional projects.

According to Westland Councilman Robert D. Wagner, who also is chairman of the PCHA Community Relations Committee, the board feels strongly that community outreach and education is particularly important because of the large populations that the hospital authority serves.

"We want the community to know what we're doing, the multitude of programs we have for them, both to treat illness and promote wellness," Wagner said. "The PCHA is the largest hospital authority in Michigan, but coupled with its 'bigness' is the 'smallness' of the local community hospital."

"We have a lot to offer the citizens in our 24 member communities, but we need a person whose job it is to create public awareness of what we are and what we do."

PCHA was formed in 1945 with the passage of a state law permitting creation of a hospital authority by a consortium of communities. The authority is composed of 24 communities in downriver and western Wayne County and eastern Washtenaw County.

The authority owns and operates five hospitals in that geographic area with an estimated population of a million people. Annapolis Hospital is in Wayne, Beyer Memorial is in Ypsilanti, Outer Drive Hospital in Lincoln Park, Seaway Hospital in Trenton and Heritage Hospital in Taylor.

Setting policy and making the decisions regarding operation of the hospital group is a 47-member Board of Directors, composed of representatives from the member communities.

The new community relations director was, until her recent appointment to the PCHA staff, a writer for Associated Newspapers Inc. for six years. The Wayne-based newspaper chain publishes six weekly newspapers in Western Wayne County.

Ms. Camps graduated with high honors from Michigan State University's school of journalism in 1974, after graduating first in her class from Cherry Hill High School in Inkster. She is a former resident of Dearborn Heights.

As a reporter for the Western Wayne County area, she has in the past covered activities of the PCHA board and Annapolis Hospital, since Associated Newspapers serves several PCHA member communities.

"I'm pleased to be associated with an organization of the caliber of PCHA. As a community resident and a reporter in its service area for several years, I've always been impressed with the job it does providing health care services," Ms. Camps said. "The health care field is certainly a complicated one, and my first few months on the job will entail spending a lot of time learning not only about the PCHA structure and hospitals, but the issues facing health care today."

"Arriving at PCHA with a 'layman's' background and attitude toward health care gives me a first-hand understanding of the questions and concerns that are probably on the minds of our citizens."

College expenses

Back-to-school time is almost here and along with it expenses are going up.

To help cut costs try buying school clothing and supplies in August and October when prices are 10 to 30 percent lower than during the rest of the year. Other school expenses should be planned into the family budget too, says The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Get your children involved in family budgeting by giving them an allowance and let them learn early how to live within a budget. Start when the child is young paying a small amount every week and as the child grows older increase both the amount of the allowance and the length of time between payments.

Your child should accept full responsibility for how the money is spent. CPAs say, so let him or her know you are there to advise on money matters. Sitting down with the child and explaining what expenses the allowance is supposed to cover will help. Will school lunches and carfare be paid out of the allowance, or will it be used for other expenses like movies and sports equipment?

As the child gets older allow him or her to participate when you decide the size of the allowance. When setting this amount, CPAs advise to keep in mind your family budget and how much your child's friends and schoolmates receive.

Your teenager should be able to handle a substantial allowance which will cover all clothing and school expenses and permit him or her to start saving for education or travel.

If your teenager has a part-time job, decide if you'll give a reduced allowance or none at all. When you think your teenager is mature enough to handle a credit card, let him or her borrow yours and reimburse you promptly when the bill comes in.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE COUNCIL MINUTES Regular Meeting, July 7, 1980

A regular meeting of the City Council for the City of Belleville, County of Wayne, and State of Michigan was called to order by Mayor Emerson, with Councilmen Carlson, Tontalo, and Loria present. Councilman Stinehour absent.

Also present: B. Ward Smith, James White, R.W. Doane, Burma Wertz, Steve Sheldon, Tom Mooradian, Bert Osterberg, Pat Jordan, Cathy Horste, Pat Cullin, Roger Copp, Jay Frazier, Janet Shubitowski, and Omnicom representatives.

Elections: Maybe on Sundays?

If Melina Mercouri would pardon us for a moment for tampering with her words and song, maybe it's time for America and Americans to forget "Never on Sunday" and think "Why not on Sunday?"

One thing for sure, it's not working on Tuesdays. Elections, that is. As predicted, with more than 5 million registered voters in Michigan, less than 25 percent took time out on Tuesday to cast their votes.

And on these pages — and pages in most newspapers in the area and state — the words "voter apathy" probably will appear as an irrational reason for the lack of voter turnout.

We don't really think that is true. There may be some who are disenchanting with the system and refuse to cast their ballots because "it won't make any difference," but let's look at it from another angle.

After putting in a day's work in a factory, office — or wherever — nerves on edge, restless and distraught and tired, you head for home only to learn it's Tuesday, an "election day." You see mountains ahead of you. You feel obligated, a sense of responsibility that you should and must cast your vote.

But you're tired. And if the guilty system doesn't sound an alarm, you probably will say, "Ah, I'll vote the next time."

But the next time, as statistics prove, there is some other reason for not casting your ballot. There are always good excuses.

Maybe it's time to try something the Europeans have done for years — hold elections on Sunday. Or maybe declare an election day, a national holiday. After all, it is important. The people we send to office have our lives in their hands — they can declare wars, tax us to death, take our children away from us, bus or not bus students.

It is time for us to take a second, and third, look at elections... Before apathy kills us all.

Unsung heroes

The unsung heroes of the recent thunderstorms which battered western and southern Wayne County and other portions of Michigan are the work crews of the utility companies serving those areas.

Working day after day on 16-hour shifts with an 8-hour rest period utility workers slaved to restore electrical power to area residents and businesses. Sawing fallen trees and limbs to get at severed power lines is demanding physical labor and their efforts should not go unheralded.

These workers employed by the Detroit Edison Co. and Consumers Power Co. deserve the heartfelt thanks of those unfortunate persons who had no lights for days on end, who lost precious meat in freezing compartments, and who could not open or close garage doors, etc.

Without the valiant efforts of local utility work crews and those imported from out of state, the herculean task of cleaning up and restoring electricity could not have been accomplished so soon.

We commend them and believe that our community officials should make a special effort to thank them in some special way, whether it be a printed notice in the local newspaper or some other form of special tribute.

A milestone in peace and freedom

Two significant events mark this year for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

It is celebrating its 65th anniversary, and from August 19 to 23 it will hold its 21st Triennial congress at Quinnipiac College, near New Haven, Connecticut.

This unique congress, the first to be held in the United States since the early 1960's, will bring together over 300 women from many countries, including the 25 where there are WILPF national sections.

The keynote address will be given by Lucille Mair of Jamaica, Secretary-General of the 1980 World Conference of the U.N. Decade for Women.

Distinguished international authorities, including Elise Boulding, Professor of Sociology at Dartmouth College, will speak on disarmament, development, human rights, and education for peace and freedom. Vinie Burrows will perform.

Workshops on these topics will be conducted by WILPF leaders from around the world, and well-known representatives of national organizations will take part in a special Round Table on Feminism and Militarism.

In addition there will be folk dancing and singing, training in nonviolent action, an international peace gift shop, and an anniversary party at which a Peace and Freedom Award will be given. There will be time for informal sharing.

Although registration is open to non-WILPF persons, there will be limited space so reservations should be made immediately.

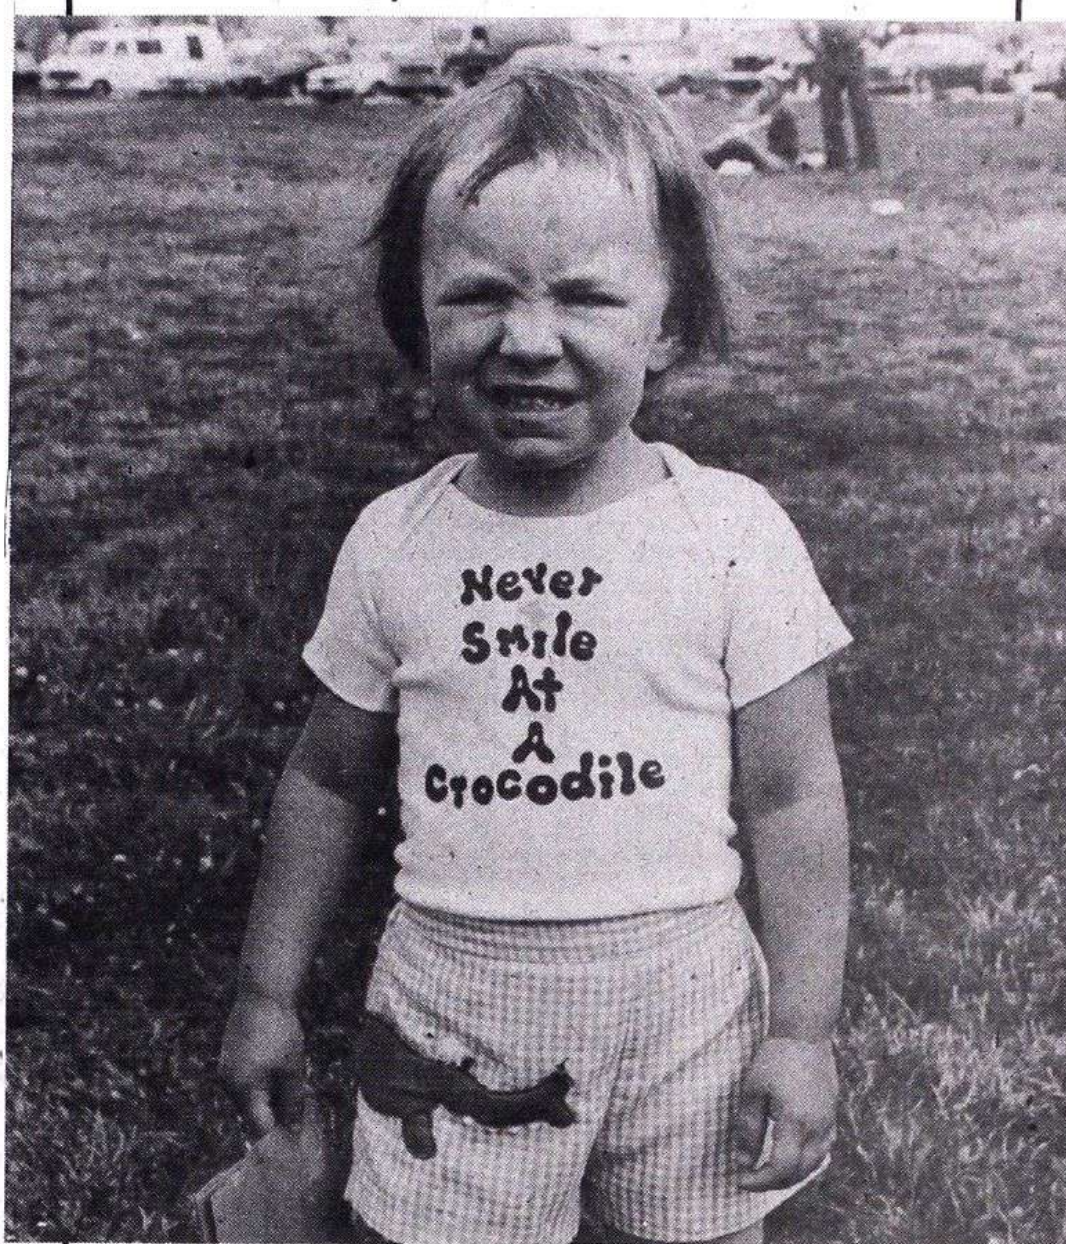

Several women from the Detroit area will be attending; further inquiries about the Congress or about WILPF, as well as any contributions toward expenses of the conference may be directed to the Rouge Valley Branch Chairman, Barbara Maldegan at 274-8391, or Alice Bostick at 561-9256.

Young women are especially welcome at the Conference.

Another side of the compost plant

Regardless of all the pros and cons, or feelings of some irate and upset citizens, society must realize that sewage sludge must be disposed of somewhere, somehow.

Recent protests in Sumpter and Van Buren townships by some residents living near landfill sites sound like sour grapes and are examples of similar situations happening all over our nation.

In many instances, residents complaining about the odor and general nuisance of nearby landfills have lived there only a year, two years, or other short periods of time. They knew the "dump" was there when they moved in.

For them to cry and lament about this or that is not realistic. No one twisted their arm to move there; they did it of their own free will!

Sewage disposal has and always will be a problem for mankind. But, where it has been going on for 20, 30 or 40 years, in most instances, it should be left alone and allowed to continue.

In Romulus, city fathers are considering what to do about a Detroit firm that wants to build a sewage sludge recovery plant that will convert the undesirable material into fertilizer. Many problems remain to be worked out before such an undertaking could become a reality.

However, as a resident of the area, I know full well what is now located on the land wanted for the sludge recovery plant. The city officials who called Mendrek's Dump "disgraceful" were putting it mildly. It's abominable!

A recent trip to Maryland to see a government operated plant similar to the one contemplated for Romulus has received mixed reviews. You, the managing editor of Associated Newspapers, went on that trip and came back complaining about the odor.

That plant in Maryland is several years old. The new one in Romulus possibly will utilize the latest technology to minimize sludge odor. If so, a modern sludge recovery plant in the area west of the C & O tracks and south of Ecorse Road could prove to be a blessing for the city of Romulus, if everything can be worked out.

It's a fact of life that no one individual or one endeavor will please everyone. That's an impossibility. But, if the majority can be satisfied, then the smaller percentage of complainers and protesters must be overridden.

In Van Buren Township, a recent story in your newspaper related how residents living near the large landfill there complained about smell, flies and not being able to sit outdoors or cook outside. Yet, the landfill has been there much longer than the subdivision in which the protesters live.

In Sumpter Township, the same situation prevails. Residents living near the landfill there complain about similar inconveniences. But, most of them also moved in only a short while ago.

Often, cases are made against landfills just before election time. That may very well be true in Van Buren and Sumpter townships.

It is true that in those cases where a new landfill or sludge disposal operation is being contemplated for a specific area that legitimate reasons can be found for quashing the project.

But, where such operations have existed for years, emphasis should be given to improving them with modern technology. Residents living nearby who are only newcomers to the area and who are unhappy with the situation should move elsewhere.

Before the sludge recovery plant for Romulus is scrapped, every side of the proposed project must be reviewed and considered with the best interests of the majority of area residents given top priority.

Much of the area wanted for the sludge recovery plant operation in Romulus has been the site of several dumps over the last few decades. Residential development is out of the question as builders say the cost would be prohibitive to build underground sewers and utilities due to all of the concrete, metal, and other hard trash and rubbish buried there.

Only an industrial type operation utilizing moorings that allow foundations to be anchored many feet underground can be built on the old dumping grounds which surround the present Mendrek's Dump.

The proposal to build a sludge recovery plant in Romulus is not a harebrained scheme. It merits the utmost study before rejection. I hope our city fathers extend that courtesy to the project.

The Other Side of the Meridian

The lost generation

By TOM MOORADIAN
Acting Managing Editor

The fast stream of dialogue which circulated the newly-opened Council Chambers in Inkster was cluttered with oratory. The speakers offered no solutions to the problems that the unemployed of today face daily.

Carl Wilson, "middle aged" (and there are quotation marks around the two adjectives because age is so subjective) and concerned about his community, was addressing the City Fathers.

Wilson informed Council that he had purchased a home for approximately $24,000, invested another $20,000 into it over the years and, like most of us, maintained his property, "because I want to be proud of my house, my street and my community."

Like most of us, Wilson is selfish enough to want to enjoy life. He argued very convincingly that the life and death of a neighborhood depends on each and every person who lives in that neighborhood.

Unfortunately for Wilson and his family, his neighbors disagree. Spewing out word pictures that would remind us that there are "lost generations" amid the great metropolises, Wilson said his neighborhood now is a "slum" thanks to "people who don't know how to and don't care to take care of their homes."

"The government has given some of these people homes, but they don't know how to take care of them. In fact, these people find nothing to cling to."

One person compared these people with the Cuban refugees. Homeless and hungry.

But I feel the Cubans or the boat people of Asia are more fortunate than those stuck in the "slums" of America: the Cubans came to our shores with hopes and dreams — those who reside in our slums have lost even that and, consequently, "live" without hope.

Lose hope, and you lose everything.

"I do not know what to say or do anymore," Wilson told Council. "I try so hard to keep my property looking good. But what's the use when you see that your neighbor has weeds waist high, and rats race across my lawn to get to the trash that someone tosses out of a broken window."

"What am I to do — these people exist. Must I move out?"

Either you do, or you become like them.

To those who believe that everything is permissible when you're on this side of a typewriter, let me say this: there are more restraints here than there.

Contrary to belief, common sense usually dictates most of our actions and reactions.

So when one resident recently argued that we were "protecting" a certain politician arrested just before the election for driving when under the influence, because we refused to write the story unless we had a comment from the accused, she slammed the telephone in our eardrums.

And, let me also point out that if the practice in these parts included writing stories about inebriated drivers — believe me, there are oh, so many of them — and we subsequently did not write about this incident, then, we would have been delinquent in our job.

No, we will not "cover up" for anyone. Or "kill" a story because of threats. But I feel the Press has a responsibility to be fair.

Over many years our instincts have been conditioned to send signals when people suddenly provide a "good story" near election time.

Let me leave you on a positive note:

People on Brush Street in Wayne have "nominated" Jack Linebrink as "Neighbor of the Year." It seems that Linebrink is very helpful helping others, says Lanette Berec, owner and executive director of an adult foster care home on the street.

"During the storm he cleared the streets of debris, and afterwards cut trees and branches. He assisted everyone he could. He also has found jobs for some of the people at the foster home."

"Jack and the rest of the people on the block have made us feel that we are a part of the community, and we really love it," Mrs. Berec said.

Isn't that the way it should be?

Rah! Rah! for Janet

EDITOR — In the July 17 edition of the Eagle paper there was an article by Janet Szymanski. We would like to say Rah! Rah! for her. She wasn't afraid to tell the truth about the paving being put in our subdivision when we had over 51 percent on the petition against it. We would like to say at least half of our subdivision, which is Wayne-Highlands, would vote for anyone that runs in the next election for the council, except anyone that is in there now, because we could never get worse then we have now.

More than trees fell

EDITOR — In these days of bad and good times for us all, no matter what nationality, color or religion, we tend to be caught up in our own little worlds with our own problems.

It takes a real crisis sometimes to find out just what kind of person you are. Someone we look upon as having their heads together may be the ones that simply fall apart during a trying situation.

And someone you only know to say hello is sometimes the one who comes in and gives you the incentive to get going and pull yourself together.

Any more than a few days without all the conveniences that one is accustomed to can cause tempers to flare and patience to cease. Often times someone you have lived with or next door to for years can under-go a drastic personality change.

For all of us that had this lasting experience with the tornado-like storm last week, I want to congratulate everyone who managed to survive the bitter words with their spouses, clashes with their neighbors, the high price of ice, the spoiled food, the saw dust, broken glass, water in the basement (and everywhere else it managed to seep in), green swimming pools, no television and the insurance man telling you it was an act of God!

P.S.

TO ANP:

I had no idea who to address this to, however, I would greatly appreciate you printing this in your paper. The more I thought about all that had happened during the storm we had last week, the funnier it became.

We can all sit back and laugh about it now, but then, it was a completely different story. Between the sweat and tears and the mess we all managed to come out of this feeling differently about ourselves and what we often take for granted.

Thank you,
J.P.

Police explorers tell their side

EDITOR — At this time I would like to open up a matter to the citizens of the city of Westland. First, I would like to explain what a police explorer is. A police explorer is a boy or girl who is interested in the field of police work or wants to see what it is like behind the scene of police work. The explorer rides with sworn in officers. The matter is the explorer program is being taken away from 20 to 25 teenagers. The reason is...

When the storm hit the city has rented or borrowed a box car to store citizens' food that was without electricity. The city then needed someone to watch the box car. So that's when the police dept. comes in. One of the lieutenants made a list of officers who he wanted to sit and watch the car while getting paid over time. The inspector said no and called in six of our explorers.

The officers, of course, were knocked out of a job. The explorers were not paid. I can see the officers' view, because they might have families. Second, that's their job. But officers need to look at this more closely. A lot of kids are really trying and took no part in the boxcar deal. They, the innocent, are suffering.

I wanted the city to know because I think it affects them.

Thanks,
EXPLORER
Westland

I think that I shall never see...

EDITOR — I am a resident of the north side of Wayne, and I live on a street that once was shaded by big, old trees that took many years to reach maturity.

Now, the effect is barren because of the storm. But, what makes me angry is the fact that many of these trees wouldn't have been vulnerable if they had been taken care of over the years.

A city such as Wayne has a responsibility to care for its assets. In fact, I think tree care should take priority over enclosed swimming pools and all-but-empty parking garages.

No saplings, if we're lucky enough to get them, will take the place of the big trees that also hosted birds and squirrels.

Adding insult to injury are all the panicky people who are insisting healthy (?) trees should come down just in case of another storm. So much for gracious living and tradition.

Welcome to Wayne's Sahara — also to bigger utility bills because the trees cut the wind and provided shade to many a home.

GOP delegate likes Romulus

EDITOR — As a delegate to the 1980 National Republican Convention I want to thank the City of Romulus for their warm hospitality.

It was cheering to be welcomed by the citizens of Romulus at their hospitality suite in the Holiday Inn with snacks and hot coffee. This was particularly appreciated because restaurants were closed when we returned from the Convention Center after long sessions, and, believe me, that hot coffee really hit the spot. (I would like to get the recipe for those "sloppy Joes" served Wednesday night. They sure were tasty.)

The packet which you friendly citizens gave us...Chamber of Commerce publication with the beautiful sunrise (A New Dawn), the Romulus Public Information Office booklet and other useful pamphlets made me aware that

"THERE REALLY IS A CITY OF ROMULUS." The pocket road atlas will stay in my car's glove compartment as a practical map when I travel across the country. And thank you for the other "goodies" in the packet, souvenirs of your cordial welcome.

I wish the wind storm with the extensive damage to electrical equipment had not inconvenienced us all, but since I did not get a chance to visit all of your restaurants in Romulus during convention week I intend to do so in the near future. I am sure I am speaking for other Michigan delegates also when I say "Thank you, Romulus."

Jaycees say 'Thank you'

EDITOR — The Belleville-Van Buren Jaycees ran a Casino & Dunk Tank at VanBuren Family Day on July 27 and they would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who made that day a success.

First we want to thank the Family Day Committee for allowing us to participate in the great event, all the Jaycees & their great friends, and the people of Century 21 Community Realtors for their help at the Casino & Dunk Tank, thanks Jim McCoy, & Sherry. Thanks to: Burger Chef on Rawsonville Rd. and Batzkin Lumber Co. on Sumpter Rd. for donating needed items. Last but not least thanks to Rick Morgan for his help at the Casino day & night.

Strange slate in Canton

EDITOR — Do Stein, Bradley, Daley, Bridenthal and Roberts make up a slate? One can't help but wonder when we see all five of their signs clumped together everywhere they are located. Even some of their political fliers were passed out together.

A five member slate would be disastrous because there are no independent thinkers. Legislation would be ram-rodged down the Township's throat. Such a slate could become a dictatorship... and since the next terms of office for all the board members are all four years, the consequences for the Township are frightening.

Another question that must be asked is why are the Stein, Bradley, Daley, etc. signs in abundance only along major roads and in our open land areas? Many are next to commercial "for sale" signs. Bradley, herself, has a commercial for sale sign among all the political signs.

Are these people seeking office only to protect their own and friends' special interests (such as wanting to rezone their properties for their own profits) as opposed to seeking and representing what is best for the Township as a whole?

Four years of a self-benefiting board will destroy Canton... and use our tax dollars to do it. We need a board of free and independent thinkers who can represent every person in Canton. Make your voice be heard by making your vote count. Vote for the independent candidates!

Most concerned,

On the brighter side

The grass only looks greener

By JIM BRADLEY

If you could be anyone else on the face of the earth, who would you choose to be?

Because the grass always seems to look greener on the other side of the fence, many would jump at the chance to trade places with anyone they could. They'd junk their problems and difficulties for the pleasure of being someone else. But would it really be that good of a deal?

I doubt it.

The grass only looks greener. Ask anybody. They'll tell you that when you look on the outside, things look completely rose — but when you get the complete picture it's a different story. Everyone has his troubles.

In my dual capacity as a reporter and newspaper columnist, I run across a lot of people. I guess my two "callings" enable me to meet a greater variety of people than just about any other occupations. I count as my personal friends senators, state representatives, mayors, city councilmen, and a host of other equally important people.

One thing is true about every one of them. Amid all the glamour of their profession, there is the heartache of problems and difficulties.

The other day I was invited to lunch by a prominent businessman in the area and we discussed many of the most important issues of the day. During the course of our conversation, he admitted that he drains a bottle of Maalox every so often because of nervous tension and a possible ulcer.

Now here's a likeable, smiling, successful man who has worked his way into a good paying profession and serves in several important community positions.

Many look up to him, and I do, too! But his confession (I'm not exactly sure that's the right word to use) showed that all is not what it seems to be.

Those who look at him every day and see his beaming smile and courteous way do not realize the tension and burdens he carries in his position of responsibility. They simply admire his high position and good salary and aspire to have something similar — not knowing the price he's paid for that position.

Believe me, the grass only looks greener!

To those who look longingly at another woman from the shackles of an unsuccessful marriage, think again. She might not look so alluring if you lived with her.

Or do you envy that high-powered new car that left you idling when the redlight changed? Think of the monthly payment and the enormous gas bill. Reminds me of the fellow who purchased a new car and described it: "Power brakes, power steering, power windows...Power payments..."

I've often wondered whether it's worse being a pauper with no money or having money and owing everybody. Only thing worse...I guess...is having no money and owing everybody!

When I carried mail a few years ago (my feet still remember), I recall walking up to a grand $50,000 house (probably worth $100,000 today). The owner, who was quite elderly, was manicuring the beautiful lawn and trimming the gorgeous shrubs. As I casually handed him a fistful of junk mail, I remarked: "It must be nice living in such a large, expensive house — and having a lot of money."

He stroked his gray hair and answered, "Don't kid yourself. I worked 18 hours a day, seven days a week to buy this house and now I'm too worn out to enjoy it. In working myself to death's doorstep, I've lost all the enthusiasm I thought I'd have in owning this fine home."

To those driving by that huge home with sprawling green lawn, it was an object to be desired. To the man who destroyed his health in obtaining it, it was an object of frustration.

The grass only looks greener.

For many people "Tomorrow" is always looking greener. They have great plans for tomorrow — but today is the only time we have for sure. Someone has well said: "Yesterday is like money we've already spent and tomorrow is money only promised. Today is all we have to spend."

Amid your troubles, trials and temptations, remember one thing. Things are not always what they seem. The grass may look greener on the other side of the fence.

But once you climb over that fence to view it up close, you will probably look back and see that your grass is a lot greener than you thought it was.

'What God do they pray to?'

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

Somewhere, not too long ago I read the following ad: Wanted for responsible job, young man with good Christian virtues, preferably from a good Jewish family.

That ad made me laugh, but after I had finished laughing, it also made me think, for apart from the humor of those few lines, there was a subtle ACCEPTING of the qualities of the two religions, in marked contrast to the slandering ethnic humor we encounter daily.

Of course, everyone knows that all people, probably from the beginning of time have needed a "them" to slander, giving themselves a great sense of superiority, which, of course, is essential to good mental health we are told.

Most people use ethnic humor without even realizing what they are doing. They fail to 'personalize' it, and show great indignation when they are accused of being bigoted.

Most of them would be horrified if you were to tell them that the reason they find ethnic jokes so humorous is because they tend to assuage their own feelings of jealousy, guilt or inferiority.

An ethnic slander is like a little kid whistling in the dark. He doesn't know what that dark contains, but he figures if he makes a lot of noise about it, nothing will happen to him.

Even if we did the impossible and each person in the world had his head and his heart opened up, and perfect understanding of his fellow beings took up residence there, we would still make up jokes about each other, for humor seems to be an innate part of human being. But, perhaps, the jokes would not be so vicious, leaving their victims swallowing their tears along with the blood which often occurs when certain mentalities are given free range.

I often think that most racial and ethnic slurs are the result of ignorance or just plain fuzzy thinking. Or maybe no thinking at all.

Not too long ago I was having dinner with a young couple, who hadn't known they were going to have dinner with me until I showed up at the same restaurant. Across from our table were several families of Arabic descent. The men were sitting alone, the women, all with their heads covered, were at another table with the very young children, and the older children were at a table between the adults. The mothers took full charge of the laughing, chattering children.

During our dessert, the Arabic men suddenly stood up and moved into one of the corners of the restaurant, where they turned, and in unison faced the huge window across the room. And then they knelt in prayer, foreheads to the floor.

"What are they doing?" my young male dinner companion asked.

"They are praying," I told him, and explained how the Moslems pray at certain times of the day, always facing East. He chewed on his strawberry cake and watched the praying man. Finally, he turned his thoughtful eyes to me and asked, "What God do they pray to?"

"The same God to whom you pray," I told him.

"How can they?" he gasped in a shocked voice. "They are Arabs and OUR God is a Jew."

Ask Carol Premo

Swimmers and drinkers...

By CAROL PREMO, PhD.

DEAR CAROL,

I have a cottage up north on a really nice lake. I have always maintained strict water rules for children. I feel all children should wear life preservers and receive adequate supervision. I rarely have any trouble with this particular rule.

I do have a problem with swimmers who have been drinking heavily. I worry about them. They usually refuse to wear any type of life preserver. I feel they could get hurt very easily. When I suggest taking some precautions they get angry and say drinking does not impair swimming, not at all like driving.

Somehow that does not sound right.

Am I concerned needlessly, or should I try to continue to convince them on this subject.

Hostess

Dear Hostess,

In a recent article on water safety, "New Lifesaving Facts about Water Safety," D.S. Smith, an officer in the United States Coast Guard and an expert on the subject states that alcohol and water probably don't mix.

"Statistics on alcohol and drowning are sketchy at best, but limited data suggest that half of those who drown are legally intoxicated."

When a drunken non-swimmer falls into cold water, he typically kills himself rather rapidly. A drunken swimmer in warmer water just postpones his fate. Swimming requires coordination, not to mention alertness, and an inebriated person in the water probably lacks both.

I have always felt the homeowner had the right to determine the rules of conduct. This is clearly a situation where it would be appropriate. Don't hesitate where a life is at stake.

DEAR CAROL,

I am 15 years old. I want to get a job. Everywhere I go they say I'm young and that I can't work enough hours to be worth the time to train me.

Is that true? Or are they just trying to get rid of me?

A 15-year-old

Dear Fifteen Year Old,

There are legal limits on the hours you can work. To quote the appropriate sections: "You may not work: during school hours; before 7 A.M. or after 7 P.M. (9 P.M. from June 1 to Labor Day); more than three hours on a school day; more than eight hours on a non-school day; more than 18 hours in a school week; or more than 40 hours in a non school week." These regulations exist to protect you, not to stop you from working. Keep trying to find a job and good luck!

DEAR CAROL,

I received an absolutely tasteless, garish, blaring, loud, horrendous purse as a gift from my mother (who knows I rarely carry a purse).

Obviously I don't like it. I don't want to hurt her feelings, but I have no intention of using that purse. Should I just stuff it in the back of a closet and forget it? Or should I discuss a difference in tastes and that I appreciate the gift but in all probability will never use it? And, then leave the next step up to her? Which approach do you advocate?

Daughter

Dear Daughter,

Leaving the purse in the closet won't help anyone and might be construed by some as dishonesty. Your second approach seems far better as long as it is handled with sensitivity. As you say taste is an individual matter and perhaps your mother would like the purse. If not there are many charitable organizations which would.

Power is restored to all in storm-stricken areas

263,000 customers were without electricity

A third storm moved off Lake Michigan striking the northern Lower peninsula Sunday morning. The final furious storm raged across Michigan on Sunday night and early Monday. Sunday's storms caused another 117,000 outages.

Damage to power lines and distribution equipment was tremendous, Jensen said. Trees and tree limbs crushed houses and cars and blocked roads leading into some towns. Jensen said he still is compiling numbers of downed lines and damaged equipment, but the preliminary figures are staggering.

At least 2,100 spans of primary power lines were down; 10,500 secondary and service lines were damaged or down; more than 1,000 line fuses were blown; nearly 200 utility poles were blown down or damaged, and nearly 275 transformers were burned out.

Each of more than 300 line crews working to repair the damage and clear trees consisted of two or more employees and a vehicle, usually a bucket truck. In addition, hundreds of supervisors, engineers, technicians, stores personnel and customer service employees provided essential support.

"Crews worked from daybreak until after dark," Jensen said, "in most cases getting only four or five hours rest." When still more help was needed, Jensen said that linemen on vacation were called, "and 30 crews reported."

"Our first priority is to clear away live wires that are down—the dangerous situations," Jensen said. "Then we restore power to hospitals and places where life support equipment is essential. Then we move into areas where we can get as many customers as possible restored to service in the least amount of time."

Jensen said he is aware of complaints from some customers who felt that Consumers Power wasn't doing enough, soon enough, to restore electric service.

"We had every available crew from every Consumers Power region working, plus outside help. Our efforts were at getting customers by the hundreds restored to service before customers by the tens."

Jensen said telephone calls from customers reporting power outages are valuable in that they help pinpoint problem areas. In addition, weather statistics and visual checks are used to assess damage in an emergency.

"But sometimes people call and the lines are busy or they get a recorded message. In that case, the customer can assume that somebody else is calling with the same, or similar information, useful to the company. Customers still should call repeatedly until they reach us. In fact, we'll often call back to verify outages or determine whether service to an area has been restored."

"People are alert in a situation like this," Jensen said. After a 48-hour power outage, some customers who did not see Consumers Power crews in their neighborhood thought nothing was being done to correct the problems.

"The fact is that unlike the tornado damage in Kalamazoo, where repair crews were working in confined areas and neighborhoods and were highly visible, after these storms the crews were spread out across the state," Jensen said. "They had been working from the outset, but the damage was so widespread."

Jensen said the majority of customers affected by the storms were patient and cooperative, assisting the company in assessing damage. He complimented the crews working to repair the damage, specifically, for their efforts, and thanked customers for their patience and understanding. "They said the ice storm in '76 is the type of storm that comes only once in a lifetime."

Fortunately, Consumers Power Company and its employees were prepared for different odds.

In Michigan, hop aboard a boat

For an unusual ride in Michigan, hang glide off a Lake Michigan sand dune, soar above the countryside in a hot-air balloon, hang from a strap on a double-decker trolley or skim over car tops on a futuristic people-mover, suggests Automobile Club of Michigan.

If you love the water, ride a ferry or riverboat or paddle your own Voyageur Canoe. Other ways to go include horse-drawn carriage, Model T car, steam engine and dune buggy.

Sixty dollars will buy you one day of lessons from the Midwest School of Hang Gliding at Bridgman (616-426-3100). Students are strapped into a harness attached to a 30-foot-wide sail, then coaxed off a 20-foot training slope in Warren Dunes State Park along Lake Michigan.

An eight-to-10-mile ride in the wicker basket of a hot-air balloon takes just under an hour and costs between $87.50 and $90 each for two persons. For reservations, call Cameron Balloons US (313-995-0011), Balloon Corp. of America (313-767-2120), Balloon Depot (313-682-3039) and High America Ballooncenter (313-852-0666).

A quarter gets you a trolley car ride between Grand Circus Park and the Renaissance Center in downtown Detroit. A double-decker trolley was added to the run this summer.

There is no charge to ride the computer-controlled electric peoplemover linking Dearborn's Fairlane Town Center and the Hyatt Regency Hotel. It takes less than two minutes to cover the 2,600 feet of elevated guideway.

You and your car can be transported by ferry across the St. Clair River to Canada and across Lake Michigan to Wisconsin.

Daily service in southern Michigan is offered between these points: Algonac and Walpole Island-Wallaceburg, Ont.; Marine City and Sombra, Ont., and Roberts Landing and Port Lambton, Ont.

To travel from Michigan to Wisconsin, take the Chessie System Autoferry (800-632-0084) from Ludington to Manitowoc, Milwaukee and Kewaunee or ride the Ann Arbor carferry (800-632-0972) from Frankfort to Kewaunee. The crossing takes four to six hours, and regularly scheduled trips are made only during summer.

A much shorter trip is the Ironton Ferry crossing of Lake Charlevoix from Ironton to Boyne City. The ferry is pulled across the lake on cables, and the five-minute ride costs $1.

Take a journey into the past aboard a paddle-wheel boat. The Au Sable River Queen Boats (517-728-9871 or 517-739-7351), west of Oscoda at Foote and Five Channels dams, offer two-hour narrated cruises. A much shorter cruise is available aboard the Suwanee, a restored 1888 paddle-wheel riverboat at Dearborn's Greenfield Village (313-271-1620). The Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority has two paddle-wheelers — the Island Queen at Kensington Metropark near Milford (313-685-1561) and the Dixie Belle at Metro Beach Metropark near Mount Clemens (313-963-3022).

New this year at Metro Beach is the Voyageur Canoe, a 34-foot replica of the Montreal canoe used by the fur traders. The canoe holds 20, including the licensed boat operator, and everyone paddles for an hour's trip around the lake while listening to a narrated history of the Great Lakes.

On Mackinac Island, where motor vehicles are banned, visitors can take a 1 1/2-hour circle tour by horse-drawn carriage.

Youth rebels at City Golf Championships

20-year-old Ryan's 2-under-par 70 leads first round

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

Youth got the best of experience and is dominating the 21st annual 5-city golf championship at the halfway point at Fellows Creek Golf Course after Sunday's opening round.

Ten of the 13 top scorers at the halfway point are in their early twenties or younger.

Saturday's rainstorm washed out the first round of the 36-hole tourney and postponed the final 18-holes until next Saturday, thus causing reigning champion Tom Piscopink of Wayne to withdraw. Piscopink, who has won the last three consecutive championships, and Fred Bachel, another fine golfer, both had to withdraw to play in a tournament in Grosse Ile this weekend.

However, there are still a host of sturdy swingers left in the field of 100 golfers who teed-off in the tournament which is co-sponsored by Associated Newspapers and the Parks and Recreation departments of the cities involved — Wayne, Westland, Canton, Inkster, and Garden City.

Youthful golf phenom Kevin Ryan of Inkster, who has only been playing golf four years, covered the soggy 6,200-yard, par 72 Fellows Creek layout in a brilliant two-under-par 70. The 20-year-old strung 15 pars, birdies on holes 6, 12 and 17 and one bogey to take a 2-stroke lead over Canton's Matthew Wiley, 23, at the mid-way point.

Four strokes back of Ryan at 74 was 40-year-old Al D'Amato, one of only three veteran golfers in the top twelve finishers. Tied for fourth with 75 each were 22-year-old Russ Holden of Westland and last year's Garden City champion, Roger Sutherland, who is in his mid-thirties.

Three tied for fifth with 76's, including 22-year-old Kevin Hammer of Garden City, 40-year-old Ray Ostyn of Wayne and 17-year-old Steve Zaidel of Wayne, who will be a senior at John Glenn High School this fall.

Philip Smith and Kevin Schaum, two youthful players from Canton, fired identical 77s and Rick Zylka, also of Canton, finished with 78.

Six swingers were deadlocked with 79s, including Henry Leszczynski, and Brian Bielecki, both recent Graden City high school graduates; veteran Angelo Garfale of Wayne and the Westland trio of Jeff Lansing, Bob Harden and veteran Bennie Poindexter.

These leaders will be in the championship flight and other golfers in the tournament will be grouped into various flights according to their ability in their various cities for next Saturday's final 18-hole finish. Tee-off times are posted on the sports pages.

Saturday's downpour drenched the course and forced Tournament Director Bill Hawley to postpone play after nine holes. Ironically, most players said they shot better golf Saturday on the soggy, water-filled course than they did in the bright sunshine of Sunday afternoon.

The weather made no difference to Ryan, one of the brightest young golfers on the links' horizon, as the 1968 Cherry Hill High School graduate burned up the course with a scintillating two-under-par 70. The 5-11, 165-pounder, who fired a 66 on Fellows Creek in a practice round this year, parred the first five holes and hit every green in regulation, except holes 9 and 15.

He was exceptionally good in carding birdies on 6, 12 and 17. Ryan's 10-foot putt curled into the cup on 6; he drove right in front of the green on 12, chipped to within two feet of the cup and sank the putt. On the 310-yard, par four number 17, the slender, machine-like Ryan drilled his drive 25 yards from the front edge of the green and almost holed a sandwedge approach before sinking a two-foot putt.

Earlier this year, Ryan stroked a 76-72-148 to win the inaugural Canton Open Golf Championship at Fellows Creek Course, which is located on Lotz Road in Canton.

"I was pretty well pleased with my game today," said Ryan, whose father, Tom, caddied for his son and is his biggest booster. "It's shorter than many courses, but the tight fairways, high rough, tough pin placements and soggy course made it play longer," he said.

Canton's Matt Wiley, who just turned 23 on July 23, stroked a 36-36-72 for second place Sunday at the midway point. Included in his round were 12 pars, plus birdies on 3, 9 and 10 and bogeys on 2, 7 and 17.

Canton, which placed five in the top 11 finishers, had muscular, mustachioed Al D'Amato in 3rd place with a 38-36-74 despite a two-stroke penalty for entering the creek on the second hole.

"I didn't hit the ball very well today, but my putting was decent," said D'Amato, 40, who is playing in his first ANP City Golf Championship. He scrambled well, only notching nine pars, but chipping for four birdies — on holes 3, 6, 11 and 13. However, he stumbled with a double bogey on 2, plus bogeys on 4, 5, 15 and 18. "The greens were so bad with spike marks it was hard to get the ball rolling," he said. "My longest putt was seven feet."

Several other good golfers are in the chase, just a few strokes back, and the action resumes next Saturday morning when the linksmen will again attack Fellows Creek in hopes of coming home with a trophy.

The first three finishers in each flight in each city will earn the cherished hardware.

Glenn gal swimmers, attention

Girls who are contemplating on swimming in varsity competition at Westland John Glenn High School this fall are urged to get their physical examinations out of the way before the season gets underway.

Physicals will be conducted between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., Aug. 9 at 30930 Ford Rd., between Ford and Middlebelt. First year coach Debbie Sanders will answer any questions potential team members have. Ms. Sanders may be reached at 453-6165.

Franklin, physicals

All athletes who are planning on competing for Franklin Junior High teams this fall are urged to get their physicals before school opens.

Physical examinations are scheduled for 4 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 21 at the junior high.

Golfers in the swim

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

No sunshine patriots were those who shrugged their shoulders in contempt at the perpetual rains last Saturday and golfed in the Noah-like floods during the 21st annual City Championship Golf Tournaments held at Fellows Creek. The rains made many wince — but when tournament manager Bill Hawley announced, "it's on", more than 100 amateur golfers took to the field.

And, although that rain would have been God-sent to Texas or Oklahoma, it was the constant brunt of curses and jokes during the three or more hours of watery ordeal.

At the end, even Hawley admitted that the elements were stronger than the tournament and he conceded to His wish — the first round was wiped out. It was a first time in tournament history. Wet-faced, drenched golfers began filing into the club house, each with their particularly unique story.

"You can't putt out there," one golfer said. "I knew it was time to quit when I thought I sank a putt but it just stayed afloat atop of the hole."

The dark clouds refused to quit — a perfect state of contradiction to the golfers will. Ironically, some brought in their best rounds.

Despite the uncooperative weather, the golfers were back — all dried out — for Sunday's round. Saturday's round was declared "a practice round," by Hawley. The championships will be decided on Saturday at Fellows' Creek.

Fellows' Creek Golf Pro Tom Ross has turned that course into one of the better ones in the county. A complete turnaround of a few years ago when most golfers came off the course with pugnacious disgust flowing from their lips about the conditions. The only anguish heard during the two days last weekend was about the golfer's game, not about the layout.

"Ross has done a lot of things out here," said Bill Whitworth, tournament secretary. "And all of them are good. I don't think you'll hear a golfer complaining about this course."

Ross says "it took three years to turn things around."

"And I feel the program here is second to none," he said. "We're looking to the future to improve what we have."

The recent tornado-like storm that roared through western Wayne County also took its toll of trees, Ross pointed out. "We lost nearly 40 big trees. Most have been removed."

"We're going to replace them," Ross continued, "but, obviously, you can't replace 30 to 40 year old trees over night."

Another casualty of the Saturday's rains was Tom Piscopink, who was forced to withdraw from the tournament. Piscopink, the three-time defending champ, is scheduled to play in Grosse Ile Tournament this weekend. He won't be able to finish up the local championships.

And one person who wants the Lenny Anderson Memorial Trophy which Piscopink has held for the past four years is Ray Ostyn. (That trophy, named for the first police officer to lose his life in the line of duty in Wayne, is awarded to the Wayne medalist).

Ray covets the trophy for a particular reason.

"I knew Lenny," Ostyn says, "and I also know his former partner, Pat Brown. If I win, I would like to present it to him so he can display it in his bar."

Brown is the owner of the Extra Point Bar.

And, why did it rain Saturday?

One golfer explained: "In all your previous columns you used to end it with 'it never rains on my tournament. You didn't do it this time, how come?'"

I don't know.

But, to play it safe, let's make sure that radiant sunshine is there for this Saturday's championships.

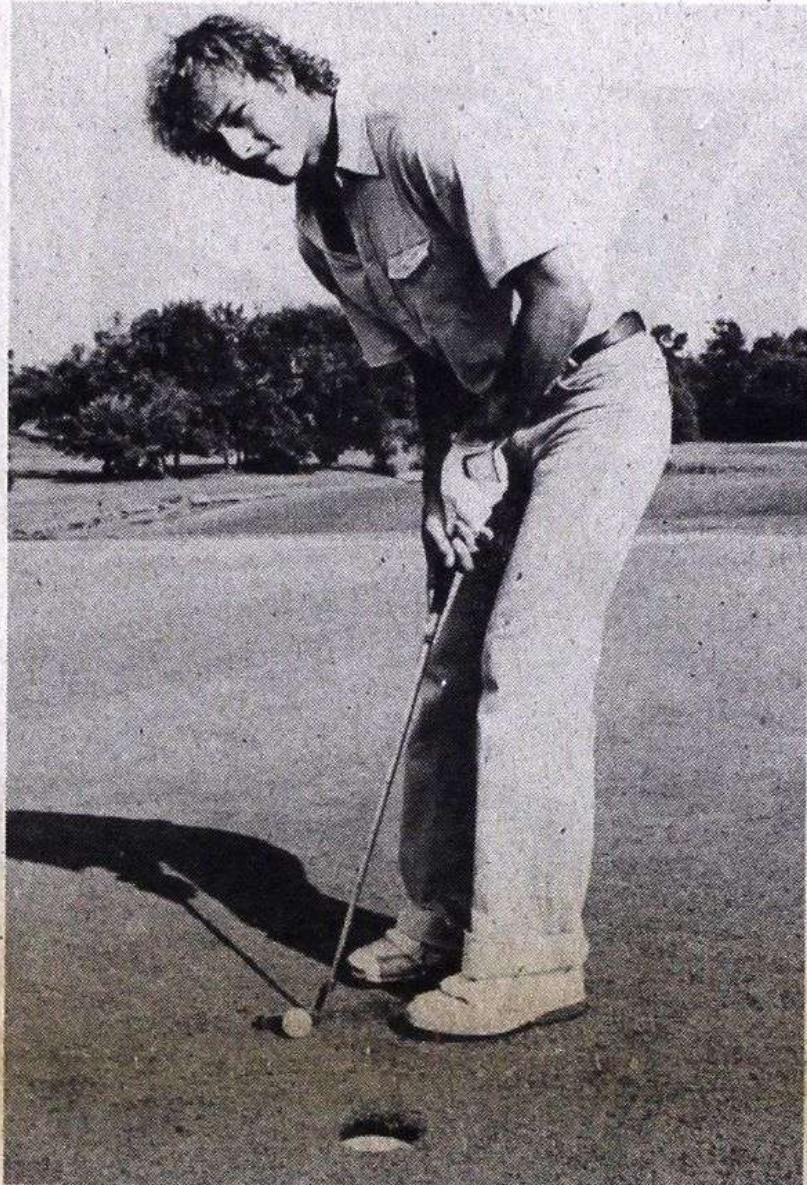

"It never rains during the championships."

Please...

One question that popped up during the tournament last week was: "Where will the 1980 Michigan Parks and Recreation Department hold its state championships?"

Patty Lynn, Westland Parks and Recreation Department employee, came up with the answer. She said the state MPRA finals are scheduled to be held on Saturday, Sept. 6 in Midland, Michigan.

The five top finishers in each of the competing communities — Wayne, Westland, Canton, Inkster and Garden City — will qualify to compete at state.

Ryan's hope

Inkster's Kevin Ryan is one of the brightest stars on the local golf firmament and he leads the prestigious Associated Newspapers' 5-city Golf Tournament by two strokes at the halfway mark after his fine 70 over the soggy Fellows Creek course Sunday afternoon. Saturday's first round was washed out after nine holes and cancelled when heavy daylong rains inundated the course. The 36-hole event will conclude next Saturday when nearly 100 golfers will chase the elusive trophies that go to the top three finishers in each flight in each of the five communities — Wayne, Westland, Canton, Inkster and Garden City.

16 teams set for Anderson tourney

Some of the top softball teams in the area will converge upon Wayne this weekend to take part in the Fourth Annual Lenny Anderson Softball Tournament.

Sixteen teams from the area will begin playing for the championship beginning at 6:15 p.m., Friday, Aug. 8 at the Anderson Memorial Field, located at Annapolis and Howe Rd. (Anderson was the first police officer to die in the line of duty in Wayne. He was also an outstanding athlete at Westland John Glenn.)

"This is the fourth year in which we have organized this memorial tournament," Larry Quartuccio, tournament manager. "The proceeds from this tournament is put back into the field for improvement. We hope to get enough money someday to make two good softball fields out here, and maybe someday purchase a plaque in Lenny's honor."

Quartuccio figures that Ye Old Carriage team from Redford is the team to beat this year. "The defending champ, Studio Lounge, isn't in it this year," Quartuccio continued, "so I see this thing as a three team affair with the Redford club, Burghuff Bar of Wayne, and the host team, Johnson Carbonic, as the teams to watch."

Here is the program for the three-day tournament:

Friday, Aug. 8
6:15 — Elm Painting of Wixom vs. Golf-O-Trom of Westland
7:30 — McNary Agency of Dearborn vs. Star Optical of Wayne
8:45 — Johnson Carbonic vs. Little Big's of Redford
10:00 — Street Pub of Wayne vs. Riche's Lounge of Dearborn
Saturday, Aug. 9
8 a.m. — Pittman's Installation of Wayne vs. Anchor Inn Lounge
9:15 a.m. — Burghuff Bar vs. Sail Inn of Brighton
10:30 a.m. — Kroger Dairy of Westland vs. Ye Ole Carriage Lounge of Redford
11:50 a.m. — Fischer Roofing of Taylor vs. Don Massey Cadillac of Plymouth
1:10 p.m. Quarter-finals

Thomas wins Westland Class playoff title

Champs were only third best in their league

Joe Thomas, a third-place finisher in the regular season, didn't wait until next year to do better — it put its game together during the Class A Westland Slo-pitch playoffs.

A 11-7 won-lost team during the course of the year, Thomas rallied for two runs in the bottom of the seventh to edge the Jock Shop 8-7 and win the playoff title. Earlier in the playoff series, Joe's had dropped a decision to league champs, Jamie's.

Gary Bowman's bat and arm were the difference in the championship. Bowman blasted an over-the-fence homer and his two hits counted for three runs batted in. Teammates John Hinds and John Sampson supported him with a roundtripper and two hits, respectively.

Losing pitcher Steve Patterson blew a five-run third inning lead. The Jock Shop still had the edge 7-6 going into the final frame. Bob Pickney, John Marmul and Johnny Lee each laced two hits.

The Jock Shop made it into the playoff championship by pounding out 26 hits and 22 runs to earn a 22-17 victory over First Edition Lounge. Tom Battestone made all four of his count for homers which drove in eight runs. Steve Jacunski had five hits, including a triple while John Marmul carved out a pair of doubles, a triple and single for the winners.

Winning pitcher Tom Tompkins had his problems with slugger Dave Conlin who saw his three over-the-fence clouts and seven RBIs wasted. Ron Honeycutt also hammered a pair of roundtrippers while Bob Hope had three RBIs, a homer, double and a couple of singles.

In other Class A playoff games, Thomas's topped the Jock Shop 25-

15 as John Sampson slammed three circuit clouts and had six runs batted in. Bud Daniels also belted three roundtrippers while mates Jerry Holbrook and A.J. Vaughn each had four hits.

Vaughn, the winning pitcher, gave up 21 hits, including homers to Jeff Hodgkins and Jim Hubbs. Hodgkins collected four hits and Hubbs had three for the losers.

Thomas's came up with six runs in the fifth inning and five runs in the sixth to eke out a 18-15 victory over Jamies as A.J. Vaughn got credit for the victory. Vaughn again helped his cause with three hits, while teammates Dean Milton and John Hinds backed him up at the plate. Minton clubbed a homer and drove in three runs while Hinds chipped in four hits.

Bob Hood took the loss, but he can't blame Chuck Copland who latched on to a pair of Vaughn's pitches for homers. Ed Kritch had four singles and Ed McCahill accounted for a pair of singles and a double.

In one of the best played games of the playoffs, Jamies earned a 5-3 decision over First Edition as each team collected six hits. Winner Bob Hood gave up two runs in the first inning, then settled down and allowed only one other tally the rest of the night. Jamies came back with three in the first, broke a 3-all tie in the bottom of the fourth and scored an insurance run in the fifth.

Losing pitcher Jim Kholmman gave up a homer and two RBIs to Ken Landini and also a pair of hits, including a double to Gerry Dettler. Hood had his problems with Conlin who smacked a homer and single.

Merit Loyalty Grows.

"Former high tar brands not missed," report
MERIT smokers in latest survey.

Taste Quest Ends

Latest research provides solid evidence that MERIT is a satisfying long-term taste alternative to high tar cigarettes.

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and reported MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Smoker Tests Offer More Proof

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar.

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed.

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.

Thomas wins playoff title

Charlie Petrillo drilled three singles. In a slugfest, Jock Shop tallied five times in the seventh after scoring 10 in the sixth to claim a narrow 25-24 victory over Joe Thomas'. Vaughn was charged with the loss after giving up 25 hits, including homers and three hits apiece to Battestone, Dennis Finrock and Bob Pickny. Patterson, the winner, saw Jim May slice four singles, Hinds get three hits and Jack Bingman check in with three hits. Hinds, May and Bingman split six RBIs between them.

Thomas came up with nine runs in the bottom of the seventh to turn back Jamie's 30-25 in the opening game of the playoffs as Vaughn served up 26 hits to the losers including four homers and a near-record 10 RBIs to Landini. Copland also connected for a pair of circuit clouts and had four runs batted in and John Nibert had four hits, including a homer.

Losing hurler Tim Abramski couldn't stop Gary Bowman who smacked four roundtrippers and had five runs batted in. Ray Fox turned in with four RBIs, a homer and three singles, while Gary Knapp socked four hits for the winners.

'A' chase continues to be close

Johnny's Shell and Studio Lounge managed to hold off a pair of upset-minded teams to remain deadlocked in the chase for the Westland Class A Women's Slo-Pitch League crown.

Studio's got past J & D Auto 8-6, while Johnny's edged Alberta Thomas 4-2 as the two pacesetters stayed in a first-place knot. Both teams have identical 10-3 records.

Although J & D outhit Studio 15-13, winning pitcher Nancy Bauman saw her mates put two tie-breaking runs on the scoreboard in the sixth inning to give her the crucial victory. Studio scored twice in the first and second innings and held a 6-2 edge in the bottom of the fourth when J & D erupted for four runs to tie it up.

Karen Kimball drilled four singles and drove in two runs off of Bauman, while Debbie Rashe had a pair of triples and a single. Judy Cousineau latched on to three hits.

Cousineau, the losing hurler, served up a triple and a couple of hits to Vicki Pier. Wendy Reynolds and Karen Turflinger each belted two hits for the winners.

Johnny's broke a 2-all third inning tie with a pair of fourth inning tallies to stop Alberta's victory plans. Winning hurler, Sue Chopp gave up 10 hits, three more than loser, Shelly Arner. Arner delivered a homer to Trudy Daberkow who had three RBIs for two hits. Ann Kolynits stroked a pair of singles and Deb Mazurek had a run-scoring base hit.

Over in the Class B circuit, three teams — California Sandwich, Jeanne's Gems and Token Lounge — have a share of first place thanks to their 10-3 records.

MR. AND MRS. G. BRIAN HOUSLEY
... Teresa Winningham

Vows exchanged at summer rite

New residents of Huron Township, Mr. and Mrs. G. Brian Housley, are both employees of the Cadillac Motor Company.

The new Mrs. Housley was Teresa Winningham of Taylor when she exchanged nuptial vows at the Wayne Free Will Baptist Church during a recent summer ceremony.

The double ring rite was conducted by The Rev. A. L. Morrison before a small group of close friends and relatives who also attended the reception which followed at the home of the bridegroom's parents in Westland.

Parents of the young couple are Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Winningham of Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. George Housley of Westland.

Vegetable-rice combos make for easy meals

The bountiful supply of fresh vegetables offers numerous opportunities of enjoying this produce while it lasts — in delicious, nutritionally-valuable menu plans.

Savory Vegetable Rice is a perfect example of how effectively vegetables can be used to complete meal entrees. Prepared quickly and easily in one dish on top of the range, with the help of packaged enriched pre-cooked rice, this delicately flavored rice and vegetable combination is perfect for seasonal side dishes.

Each 1-1/2-cup serving provides the following percentages of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance (U.S. RDA): 25 percent Vitamin A; 50 percent Vitamin C; 35 percent Thiamin; 20 percent Niacin; 15 percent iron.

Savory Vegetable Rice

- 2 cups water
- 1 envelope (4-serving size) onion soup mix
- 1 clove garlic, split
- 1-1/2 cups Minute rice
- 1 package (10 oz.) Birds Eye 5-minute sweet green peas
- 2 small tomatoes, cut in wedges

Or use 1-1/2 cups drained cooked or canned peas.

Bring water, soup mix and garlic to a boil in saucepan. Remove and discard garlic. Stir in rice, peas and tomatoes. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer 5 minutes. Makes 6 cups or 4 servings.

Carrots in Orange Sauce

- 1-1/2 cups sliced raw carrots
- one-third cup orange juice
- one-third cup raisins (optional)
- 1 cup Minute rice
- 1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind

Cook carrots in saucepan with water to cover until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain, reserving 3/4 cup liquid. Combine measured liquid, orange juice and raisins in saucepan. Bring to a boil. Stir in rice and orange rind. Remove from heat; cover and let stand 5 minutes. Stir in carrots. Makes 3-1/2 cups or 4 servings.

New arrivals ...

The birth of their third child, a daughter, is being announced by John and Mary Qualls of 34480 Calofotnia, Romulus. Given the title, "Barbara Phyllis", the baby arrived at 4:50 a.m. July 25 at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn, weighed 8 lbs.-7 ozs. and measured 21 1/2 inches.

She is the new sister of Rachael Qualls, who's three and a half years old, and "Little John" Qualls, who's 13-months-old.

The children's grandparents include Mrs. Phyllis Cormier, of Lapeer; Mrs. Birdie Qualls of Romulus and Ollie B. Qualls of Pleasantville, Tenn.

The trio's mother is the former Mary Cremer.

Rachel Lynn is the name selected by Gary and Vicki Paris of Pershing Street, Wayne, for their second daughter born July 8 at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

The 7 lb. - 4 oz. newcomer is the baby sister of Valerie Paris, who's 13-months-old.

The girls are the granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Delton Block of Romulus and Mr. and Mrs. William Paris of Belleville. Their proud great-grandparents include Mrs. John Steffes of Wayne and Mr. and Mrs. Hector Chambers of Clarkston.

Norwegian guests visit Belleville

By Mrs. Joseph Spring
699-4021

Sigrid and Bjorn Slagsvold and daughter, Mari, from Trondheim, Norway, were guests this past week of Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Roberts. They left July 24 to continue their trip to British Columbia before returning to Norway.

Guests this past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Corzine of East Huron River Drive were relatives from Carbondale, Ill., Mrs.

Corzine's brother-in-law, Archie Stroup and his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Diamond, and their children, Mark and Beth.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Potts of Wabash Street have returned home after having spent the past two weeks with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Allen, and son, Stephen, at Pleasanton, Calif. They also spent some time touring San Francisco.

Mrs. Larry Nollf, sons, Brian and Tim, from Oswego, N.Y., were guests this past week of the children's paternal grandparents, the Walter Nollfs of Edison Street and other relatives.

Mrs. Russell Seaman of Savage Road and a friend, Mrs. John Prentice of Southfield, motored to West Branch Sunday, July 27, where they attended a bridal shower and were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hank Evans of West Branch.

Linda Clayton of Bedell Street returned home last Wednesday from Chandler, Ariz., where she had been a guest for two weeks of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tucholski and daughter, Janet.

Mrs. Juanita Akers of Liberty Street attended a dinner and family gathering at the home of Don and Mable Berry of Westland on Sunday, July 27. The occasion was a going away party for their son, Mark, who left July 28 for Kansas City, Mo. where he has a position as Chef in the Houligan Restaurant. Others present were Irene and Lawrence Warner of Westland.

Mrs. Ada Sager of West Columbia Avenue and Mrs. Velma Kulzer of Liberty Street were luncheon guests last Thursday of former Belleville residents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Kidd of Ida.

A friend, Flora Dow from Motherwell, Scotland, has been a guest for the past two weeks of Mrs. Nellie Van Wormer of Juniper Drive.

Mrs. George Rose of Lenmore Road and members of her family, the Tony Rose family of Ypsilanti, Tom from Harris Road, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Korgal of Hull Road and Michael of Lenmore Road have returned from Traverse City where they attended funeral services for the former's mother, Mrs. Anna Tarchinski. She passed away July 21 at the age of 95 years. Burial took place in Memorial Gardens.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deering of West Columbia Avenue were in Addison last Wednesday to help their little 3-year-old grandson, Dewayne Kobish, celebrate his birthday. His sister, Teresa, returned home with them to spend the remainder of the week.

Tuesday, July 29, 12 ladies from the United Methodist church attended funeral services for a former Liberty Street resident, Dorothy H. Westergard, at the O'Brien Chapel of Ted C. Sullivan Funeral Home in Novi. Mrs. Westergard passed away suddenly July 26 at the age of 69 years. Interment took place in Grand Lawn Cemetery.

Mrs. Jane Dougall of Newton, Iowa was a weekend guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Roberts.

Mrs. Muriel Smith of Liberty Street and her sister, Mrs. Hazel Lindquist of Morrice, spent several days last week with the latter's daughter, Mrs. Charles Nanasy of Perry at their cottage on Lake George.

Mrs. Jean Clark of Montague Street and sister, Frances McAtee of West Columbia Avenue, motored to Marcellus last Sunday where they attended the Shutes family reunion held at Harmony Hall Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Choate from Portland Ore., were recent overnight guests of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stevens of East Huron River Drive.

Mrs. Hazel Bryan of Parkwood Manor spent several days last week with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. George Kuchne, at their cottage on Wolf Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dunayczan and daughter, Karen, of Vero Beach, Fla. have been visiting Mrs. Frances Korgal of Sumpter Road and other relatives in this vicinity this past week.

On Sunday, July 20, members of the family gathered at the home of the Walter Dunayczans at Lake Columbia for a family picnic. Present besides Mrs. Korgal were Mrs. Jim Schultz and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Golka and family, the Mike Dunayczan family and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Korgal of Hull Road.

Laura Orr of Flint spent last weekend with her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Orr of Crowley Street.

On Saturday, July 25, ladies from the Harris Apartments on Liberty Street, Gladys Fry, Louise VanSickle, Margaret Saunders and Muriel Smith, attended a stork shower for a former resident, Mrs. Michael Newman, now of Plymouth, at the home of Mrs. Gordon Wong also of Plymouth.

Wednesday of last week 11 members of Belleville Assembly No. 49, Rainbow for Girls, enjoyed lunch together and shopping at Briarwood Mall and attended the theater where they saw "Airplane". They were accompanied by Mother Advisor Frances McAtee.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES J. BIESZK

Bieszks honored on golden year

At an open house hosted by their children on July 5, Mr. and Mrs. James Jacob Bieszk of 419 Binder Rd., Tawas City, were honored, belatedly, on their 50th year of marriage.

Mrs. Bieszk was Mary Leona Czubowicz of Dickson City, Pa. when she exchanged wedding vows on Jan. 28, 1930, with Mr. Bieszk in Toledo, O.

Their family now includes eight living children (a son, Donald, is deceased), 25 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. The couple lived in Belleville for 20 years, moving here from Garden City in 1946 and on Mr. Bieszk's return in 1966, they moved to a home outside Tawas City where they grow vegetables and raise a few animals.

The party, held at the home of Mrs. Bieszk, was attended by some 200 guests from Dearborn, Detroit, Willis, Whittemore, La Mire, Calif. and Lincoln, Neb.

Hosts at the celebration, along with the Courtneys, were Lloyd of Belleville; Fred of New Boston; Paul of Belleville; Gerald of Willis; Patricia Mayer and Daniel of Belleville and Carl of Whittemore. The special anniversary cake was the work of a daughter-in-law, Donna Bieszk.

Prior to retiring, Mr. Bieszk was employed at the Ford Motor Company for 33 years and also had a truck farm. A mechanic, his work included repairing Henry Ford's cars. In his spare time, he enjoys leisure time in sewing, crocheting and reading.

MSU experts answer your garden queries

With the coming of hot weather, the gardening questions sprout faster than weeds. Well, almost faster. Michigan State University Extension specialists answer some typical summer queries.

Q. What does it mean when the top of your birch tree goes all wilted and then dies?

A. Wilting and dieback are the classic symptoms of an infestation by bronze birch borers. The larvae of these olive-brown beetles burrow inside the branches and trunk. The twigs die, and eventually, if the insects are not controlled, the whole tree will be killed. Keep the tree growing vigorously by proper watering and fertilizing and controlling the birch leaf miner. Any kind of stress will make it more susceptible to borer attack. Prune out borer-infested twigs and branches, and spray the bark of branches and trunk with lindane during the first week of June and twice more, at three-week intervals. Properly timed sprays will kill the adult insects before they can lay their eggs on the tree. Once the larvae are inside the wood, of course, contact sprays can't touch them.

Q. Will it hurt my philodendron to prune off the aerial roots on the stems?

A. No. There's no particular reason to do it, but there's no harm in it, either.

Q. Can I use weed killers in my vegetable garden?

A. Sure — as long as they walk on two legs and carry a hoe. Seriously now, except in certain crops — like strawberries, raspberries, and asparagus — the use of herbicides (chemical weed killers) in home gardens is generally not recommended. The reason is that there is no one chemical that can safely be used around all the crops a garden usually includes. A material that doesn't harm one group of plants may injure or kill those in the next row. Try mulching as a method of weed control. It's easy and inexpensive and it takes very little effort.

Q. Is there a quick and easy way to get rid of a tree stump in my yard?

A. The easiest way is to have someone come in with a stump grinder and dig it out for you. This will not get all the roots, of course, but it will eliminate the above ground portion and some of the larger roots. The others will have to rot away. Decay alone will eventually do away with an old tree stump, but this takes time. Stump remover chemicals generally are no more effective in promoting decay than covering the stump with soil and sprinkling it with nitrogen fertilizer. This will enhance the growth and action of soil bacteria and other organisms that break the wood down.

Q. My garage roof is all soft and green with moss. I suspect this isn't very good for the wood underneath the shingles. How do I get rid of the moss?

A. You're right about the moss — it will tend to hold moisture, which will make the wood rot faster. A number of copper compounds can be used to control moss. Where runoff will not strike valuable plants, you can use copper sulfate or copper naphthenate to control the moss. These compounds are toxic to plants. Copper sulfate also leaves a blue residue, which may be undesirable on a structure. A number of copper fungicides can be used to kill moss and algae without damaging other plants. These include copper hydroxide, copper oleate, cuprous oxide and copper oxychloride. Look for these compounds on the labels of copper fungicides and use them according to label directions. Moss grows in damp, shaded cool areas. Thinning the trees that shade the garage may allow enough additional light to enter to make the garage roof somewhat less suitable for moss growth.

Q. What would I get if I planted some sprouting onions?

A. Onion flowers and seeds. The onion is a biennial plant, producing the bulb one year and the flower and seeds the next.

Cooking out is in Barbequing has become a way of life for many Americans. In fact, three-fourths of America enjoy the ease, relaxation and change-of-pace of barbequing. It's primarily the young to young-middle age families who take to the outdoors to cook; 90 percent are under 45 years of age.

What is the most popular item to grill? You guessed it — hamburgers! The Michigan Beef Industry Commission reports that 96 percent of those who barbeque include hamburgers on their cookout menus.

St. Paul Church, Hamburg, scene of evening wedding

Double ring vows were exchanged between Judy Ann Brent and Richard Charles Baumgartner at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Hamburg June 14. The seven o'clock rite conducted by Pastor Carl Welser was witnessed by some 150 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Helen Nettie Armstrong of 8085 Hannan Rd., Romulus, and Robert D. Armstrong of Mancelona. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Baumgartner of Hamburg are parents of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her brother, Timothy Dale Armstrong of Romulus, the bride appeared in a gown of white satin and organza, the v-necked bodice accented with Venice lace and the long, sheer sleeves with lace appliques. Lace also embellished the toe-touching skirt which drifted into a chapel train as she walked.

Her 3-tiered veil of silk illusion was caught to a little lace cap and the bouquet she held was comprised of white roses, blue-tipped daisies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Bill (Cathy) Jones of Romulus was her sister's honor attendant in a pale blue cotton organza frock cut with a V-neckline, Queen Anne collar and short sleeves. A deep flounce added interest to the gown's hemline. She carried miniature white mums, yellow roses, blue-tipped daisies and baby's breath and tucked blue-tipped daisies in her hair.

Bridesmaids in identical ensembles were Mrs. Timothy (Sandra) Armstrong of Romulus, sister-in-law of the bride, and Linda Wehant of Romulus with Stacey Lynn Brent, the bride's 9-year-old daughter as junior attendant.

A niece of the bride, Cindy Lynn Jones, daughter of the Bill Joneses of Romulus, was flowergirl. Her floral printed dress, in a shade darker than the senior attendants, was trimmed with ruffles at the hemline. Her flowers included white daisies, blue-tipped daisies and baby's breath.

John Torok was best man and ushers were Bill Jones of Romulus, brother-in-law of the bride; Tony Rykowski of Hamburg, and Steve Barnett, the 9-year-old nephew of the bridegroom.

At the reception, which followed at the VFW Hall in Hamburg, the bride's mother greeted friends and relatives in an ivory polyester knit gown with a pleated skirt and split cape sleeves. Her corsage was comprised of red roses, carnations and baby's breath. The bridegroom's mother donned a rose-colored polyester knit gown with a sheer overlay and cape sleeves. She, too, was honored with a corsage of pink roses, carnations and baby's breath.

Before taking up residence in Hamburg, the newlyweds spent a week honeymooning at Atwood Lake Lodge in Ohio and Niagara Falls in Ontario, Canada.

A graduate of Romulus High School, the new Mrs. Baumgartner was employed at Kelsey Hayes in Romulus prior to her marriage. Her husband graduated from Hamburg High School and is employed by the Ford Motor Company in Wayne.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD C. BAUMGARTNER

The Happy Dieter

By Florine Mark
President, Weight Watchers

You can deal with the moods that ruin eating habits.

How we feel about ourselves and how we react to the way life treats us often has an impact on our eating habits.

Remember the last time you had the "blues" or were tense, angry or just plain bored? Think about the way you handled the mood. Chances are, you took your problem to the refrigerator. If you did, you are among thousands of people who react with problem eating when a bad mood strikes.

A sort of "vicious cycle" can be identified which characterizes such problem eating. See for yourself if this doesn't hit home:

First, something happens that puts you in a bad mood.

Second, you eat a little bit, just to treat your problem feelings.

Third, you feel badly that you ate something you shouldn't have.

Fourth, you condemn yourself for "having no will power".

Fifth, as a result, you eat a little more, just to escape the feelings you get from having gone to the refrigerator the first time.

The cycle goes on and on, unless it is somehow broken. The good news is that we can take steps to avoid this kind of problem eating.

The first step is to remember some situations in which you did fight the urge to "eat your problems away" and some in which you gave in to temptation. Analyze each category carefully. Remember why each case occurred, what emotion you were dealing with and how you might have reacted more constructively. A basic personal understanding of why you behaved as you did in each situation provides the information you need to take action.

That leads us to the second step. Keep in mind that when unpleasant experiences occur, we can respond constructively. For example, if we are unhappy because we're out of work, we can turn our thoughts to seeking a good job, instead of bemoaning our inactivity.

If we are bored, we can look for meaningful, rewarding ways to occupy our time, rather than simply feeling sorry for ourselves and snacking. The basic problems might remain, but, by taking constructive measures, we can blunt the impact of the negative feelings we're experiencing. Thus, step two is a general way to turn our reactions around constructively.

Step three is to specifically take positive action. This means planning. If we're out of work and determine we should seek a job, we should go to step three and plan as precisely as possible an intelligent approach to getting the kind of employment we'd like.

If we're angry at someone and determine we will have a pleasant and rewarding interaction with someone else, we should plan specific actions.

What we do to deal with problems and the moods they create can be very simple things. We can start a good book, spend time with a close friend, go for a nice walk, do unfinished chores, do any number of rewarding activities. The important factor is that once the vicious cycle of mood eating is broken, we are avoiding one of the prime causes of poor nutritional habits.

The very next time a bad mood strikes and you feel the urge to take your emotion to the refrigerator or pantry, take command of the situation! Don't give in! You'll find that a very different kind of cycle will result. You will be pleased with yourself for not making an unpleasant situation.

Perhaps the most constructive step of all will be the one you don't take in the direction of excess food.

WCC sets registration dates

Registration for fall classes at Washtenaw Community College began Aug. 4 and will continue through Sept. 3. Students may register from 9 a.m. through 4 p.m. on the second floor of the College's Student Center Building at 4800 East Huron River Drive. In addition, five special evening registration periods are scheduled for Aug. 12, 20, 28 and Sept. 2 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Part-time students may register by telephone through Aug. 22. Operators will be on duty from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. Please call (313) 973-3641. Those registering for industrial classes should phone (313) 973-3533. When registering by phone, please have classes selected before calling. Have the correct course number, section number, days and hour.

Also, be prepared to supply your Social Security number. Registration will be considered complete when payment is received by the College.

Bulletins describing the several hundred classes offered by the College, including non-credit offerings by the Adult Resources Center and the College's Community Services-Ypsilanti Center, are available at the Registration and Admissions Center. These are also available by mail by phoning (313) 973-3543. Counseling services are available by phoning the Center at (313) 973-3464.

Tuition is to be paid for all classes in full at the time of registration. Master Charge or Visa will be accepted. Fees for in-district residents are $16 per credit hour. In-district senior citizens are invited to participate at no charge as part of the College's Emeritus Program. Non-credit programs, varying in length from one session to those of several weeks are offered and tuition for these is determined by the subject content and length of the course. An extensive financial aid program is available through the College for those students carrying at least six hours credit and meeting other eligibility requirements.

Questions regarding this should be directed to (313) 973-3525.

The College also provides a day care facility for children 1½-5 years of age whose parents are attending classes or related activities at the College. Hours for the Children's Center are 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Fees for the Center are determined on a sliding scale which begins at 80 cents an hour. Specific information about the Children's Center is available by calling (313) 973-3538.

Other questions regarding registration should be directed to WCC staff at (313) 973-3548.

Candle wax removal

To remove candle wax from carpeting, simply cover the spot with a piece of absorbent cloth or fold paper toweling and iron over the area with the iron at a low temperature. The melting wax will be absorbed in the paper toweling. You will probably want to change the paper frequently in order to keep the melted wax from flowing back to the carpet. Continue this procedure until all the wax is off.

Candle wax stain can be removed from table linens following the above procedure with one additional step. That is to sponge the area with dry cleaning solvent which can be bought in drug stores, hardware and grocery stores until all wax has been removed.

When using dry cleaning solvent be sure to work either outside or in a well ventilated room. If you spill any solvent on yourself wash it off immediately. Be sure to read and observe all precautions on the label.

Early deadline

Due to vacation scheduling, an early deadline will be in effect next week for the Suburban Living section only. We ask that those with news items have them submitted no later than 2 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 13, rather than Thursday.

Your cooperation in meeting this one-week-only deadline will result in having your news printed in the following week's publication.

FARRUGIA-CARLINI

Mr. and Mrs. Benny Farrugia of 20749 Martinsville Rd., Belleville, are announcing the engagement and spring wedding plans of their daughter, Susan Farrugia, and Robert Carlini of 122 N. Normal, Ypsilanti. A 1979 alumna of Belleville High School, Miss Farrugia is now working as a clerk at Hydra-Matic Division of General Motors in Ypsilanti. Her fiancé, the son of Anthony and Eileen Carlini of 2313 St. Joseph, West Bloomfield, graduated in 1978 from St. Mary's at Orchard Lake and is currently a full-time student at Eastern Michigan University where he is affiliated with Kappa Phi Alpha. He also works part time at the Ypsilanti Press. A May 1981 altar date has been set at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

BACOME-ROSENBERG

An August 30 altar date has been set by Sandra Bacome of 93 Willcox St., Staten Island, N.Y. and Mark F. Rosenberg of 216 Lincoln Ave., Highland Park, N.J. The Huntington Townhouse on Long Island has been reserved for their wedding. Miss Bacome, a 1973 graduate of Belleville High School, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Bacome of Belleville. In 1977 she earned her bachelor of arts degree in communications from Michigan State University where she was a member of the National Honor Society. She also is affiliated with the National Association of Women in Communication and holds a State Emergency Medical Technicians license and Ambulance Attendant's license. At present she is working as an employment screener and tester at American Temps and Agency in downtown New York City. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Rosenberg of Highland Park, N.J. He graduated magna cum laude in 1977 from Michigan State University with a bachelor of arts degree. In 1980 he received his juris doctor law degree with high honors at George Washington National Law School. At MSU he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi and also belongs to the National Law Review and National Honor Society. He will be working for Sullivan and Cromwell, a Wall Street law firm.

TAYLOR-WOODWARD

Irene Catherine Taylor of Wayne and Kenneth Ray Woodward of Romulus are engaged and making plans for an autumn wedding. A 1975 graduate of Wayne Memorial High School, the bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Marge Taylor of 5697 Lincoln, Wayne, and Roy Taylor of Houston, Tex. She is employed as a bus driver by the Van Buren Public Schools. Her fiancé, who lives at 35672 Garner, Romulus, is the son of Paul W. Woodward of 10300 Jackson St., Belleville. He graduated in 1972 from Lincoln High School and in 1974 from Washtenaw Community College with an associate degree in institutional food. At present he is employed at the Ford Motor Company's Wayne Truck Plant. A September 20 altar date has been set.

Beware of new fad diets-- food variety is a 'must'

Do you remember the sack dress? That was certainly a fad in the world of fashion, and eating only grapefruit and hard-cooked eggs is a fad in the world of diet. Truly classic style in either clothing or diet will always be in fashion and in good taste. Style in dieting can be summed up in two words — variety and moderation. These are the two keys to sensible eating. Promises of quick, painless weight loss are an indication that the diet is probably not medically sound.

A diet designed to help lose or maintain weight should be one that can be lived with for a lifetime. Food should be one of our greatest pleasures in life. Therefore, we should learn to adapt our preferences for certain types of foods to a daily meal pattern that will meet our nutrient and caloric (energy) needs without adding excess weight.

Your personal diet plan should not become a hardship — it should satisfy not only your nutritional needs but also the social aspects associated with food.

A diet plan that overemphasizes any one food or food group to the exclusion of others could probably be labeled a "fad" diet. There is no magic food which will help "burn" fat and thus bring about immediate and permanent weight loss. There is also no food which magically reduces appetite. When just a few foods are allowed on a diet, you tire of the foods and have less desire to eat, but this is not the way to develop a lifetime diet plan.

A diet which results in weight loss or weight maintenance (if you are at your ideal weight) can and should be made up of a variety of foods. These foods should represent all the food groups — milk and dairy products, fruits and vegetables, cereals and breads, and protein-rich foods such as meat, poultry and fish.

Moderate amounts of other foods such as fats and sugars may be included when extra calories are permissible. Each group should be included in moderate amounts depending on your caloric needs.

What happens when one food group is completely omitted from your daily meals? The nutrients supplied by that particular group will be lacking, and you will create an imbalance in your diet. For example, the so-called low carbohydrate diets rely on excessive amounts of fat and protein to provide energy. When fat supplies a large percentage of your calories, there is an increase in your blood and urine of compounds known as ketone bodies. This condition is referred to as ketosis, with symptoms of nausea, fatigue and low blood pressure.

High protein diets promoted for weight loss create an imbalance in the diet by forcing the body to use excessive amount of protein-rich foods for energy. This type of diet adds stress to the kidneys in ridding the body of large amounts of nitrogen-containing compounds that are not utilized as protein. Your grocery bill will be higher when the critical need for energy must be met with protein-rich foods.

The calories in our diet should come from all three macronutrients — carbohydrate, fat and protein. Nutritionists now recommend that about 55 percent of our calories come from carbohydrate (bread and cereal groups and the fruit and vegetable group), 30 percent from fat and 15 percent from protein foods.

You are cordially invited

You are cordially invited... to take an active part in the success of your local newspapers, The Belleville Enterprise and The Romulus Roman, by submitting items of interest in your communities.

Births of your children, grandchildren or great-grandchildren (here or in other parts of the country) are always welcome news stories; readers love hearing about babies, their showers, christenings, birthday parties and subsequent activities.

Not only cradle events, but bridal showers, pre-nuptial parties, housewarmings, family reunions, the many "bowl" game, golf and bowling parties in the area, farewell and welcome back get-togethers, social club parties, first communions, wedding anniversaries, and all the goings on at any holiday season make for interesting reading in this Suburban Living section.

We love hearing about your college students and their accomplishments and what some of the BHS, HHS and RHS alumni are doing these days. Don't be shy; drop us a line and we'll see that your story gets into print.

The many clubs in the community are also requested to choose a "reporter" from their group who will contact this office after each meeting. Simply jot down the who, what, where, when and why of your organization and get it to us by our deadline date — that's 2 p.m. each Thursday unless a holiday requires an earlier submission time.

Special forms are available here in the office for engagements, weddings, births and wedding anniversaries. Simply stop by and fill one out or give us a call and we'll see that you receive one by mail.

We are anxious to fill each individual's reading interests on the Suburban Living pages and, through each person's cooperation, we can make your local newspaper just that — one filled with LOCAL news.

Brief items, such as upcoming events for the "It's a Date" column and birth announcements, will be taken over the telephone; however, all other news must be submitted in written form. (Don't worry about story-form, we'll see to that.) We simply do not have time to take lengthy stories via the phone. Those brief bits may be phoned in to 697-9191 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Drop your news off at 116 Fourth Street (we sit in the little block between the old and the new NBD banks — use the side entrance) or mail to the same address in Belleville, zip 48111.

Remember — the deadline is Thursday at 2 p.m. for anything that's to appear in the following week's issue.

We're looking forward to your R.S.V.P.

"GOOD FOR 60 DAYS ISN'T GOOD ENOUGH FOR US."

At Bob Evans Farms' we believe in only one kind of sausage. Fresh.

So while other sausage makers may let their pork sausage sit in the store for 60 days, we date ours to sell in less than 18. Even though we know it will keep fresh longer.

And while other companies ship their sausage frozen and sell it thawed, we deliver ours farm fresh, so you can fry it up farm fresh.

Other companies may tell you their sausage will keep in the supermarket for months. But we make our Bob Evans Sausage so fresh and delicious, it's hard to keep it in the store for more than a couple of days.

Three couples set altar dates

potpourri

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Although it's really not the indoor games season, there are always those rainy Saturdays (we just had one) and long, sun-filled evenings out on the back porch when word-game devotees like to resurrect the old Scrabble board or Spill 'n Spell cubes.

Since BG is NOT one for games of that ilk, it's only when the eldest of our trio comes home that I can look forward to a good brain-teasing session. A vocabulary buff, married to an equally enthusiastic partner, Luanne is always ready to challenge her mother and husband to a wild game or two of Spill 'n Spell whenever she and Pete come home.

We give each other two minutes to form those words crossword: style and also signal the 15-second warning. Those last few clicks on the clock are what can send a player into a real panic and if we see the other is having a mental block, we often give a 30-second nudge instead.

What we all dread seeing when those 14 little ivory blocks are tossed are the "J's", "Z's" and "Q-U" combos. They usually manage to freeze the thought process and a player finds himself concentrating ONLY on those particular letters.

Knowing that my competitors will be home in a few weeks, I got to thinking about the next round as I checked the spelling on a "Z" word in the dictionary. While I z-z-ing off, I took the time to jot down a few of those elusive "zed" goodies that never come to mind during our 2-minute bouts. "Zero", for some reason, is the only word I'm ever able to think of but there are others. Just take a gander at the impressive gems we could be using (and I'll even supply the definitions for you): ZARF (chalice-like holder for a coffee cup)—bet you didn't know there WAS such a thing! Me neither! . . . ZAX (hatchet-like tool for cutting and dressing roof slates) . . . ZEBU (domesticated bovine of Asia and Africa) . . . ZIBET (civet cat of south-eastern area) . . . ZINFANDEL (which can be capitalized but is also accepted in the lower case means a dry red table wine from grapes grown chiefly in California) . . . ZINGARO (gypsy) . . . ZITI (tubular pasta) . . . ZLOTY (basic monetary unit of Poland) . . . ZOUID (organic cell) . . . ZOSTER (belt or girdle worn by men in ancient Greece) . . . ZOYSIA (any of several creeping grasses widely cultivated as a lawn grass) . . . and ZYMOSIS (fermentation).

I found that the majority of words under the "Z" section are capitalized and therefore, not accepted. But don't forget such simple ones as zest, zing, zinc, zealot, zither, zounds, zucchini and here's one YOU should remember, Lu, . . . zwieback!

IT ALL HAPPENED ON THIS DATE, AUGUST 6 . . .

IN 1809 — Alfred Lord Tennyson, who was to become the poet laureate of England, was an addition to the population of Somersby, Lincolnshire and was the fourth of the 12 children to be fathered by The Rev. George Clayton Tennyson.

IN 1890 — William Kemmler was electrocuted at the state prison in Auburn, N. Y. — the first person in the United States to be so punished for a murder charge.

IN 1911 — The gal who was to become one of the most famous comedienne's in TV history, Lucille Ball, made her debut in Jamestown, N. Y.

IN 1914 — Mrs. Woodrow Wilson (nee Ellen Louise Axson) the first wife of the president of the United States, died in the White House 29 years after their marriage.

IN 1917 — Movie star Robert Mitchum bowed in at Bridgeport, Conn.

IN 1926 — Gertrude Ederle of New York became the first American woman to swim the English Channel. While accomplishing this feat, she floated on her back on seven different occasions while she was fed chicken broth from an aide in a trailing tugboat. Her total swimming time was 14 hours and 31 minutes.

ALSO IN 1926 — Talking moving pictures were seen for the first time when two different short films, produced by Warner Brothers, were exhibited at the Warner Theater in New York.

IN 1945 — The White House announced that an atomic bomb, the first of its kind to be used on a military objective, had been dropped on Hiroshima, Japan. Of a population of 343,969, casualties reported were: 78,150 killed, 37,425 injured and 13,083 missing.

IN 1954 — Emile Dionne, 21, one of the famous Canadian quintuplets, died in a convent in Ste. Agathe, Que. after an epileptic seizure.

IN 1962 AND ONE DAY EARLIER, ON AUG. 5 — Headlines announced the death of the world's most famous blonde and sex symbol, Marilyn Monroe. She died in her Los Angeles home, an apparent suicide, from an overdose of sleeping pills. During her career she had bitparts, supporting and eventually starring roles in 23 films.

IN 1966 — Luci Baines Johnson, daughter of President and Mrs. Lyndon Baines Johnson, married Patrick Nugent in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C.

THAT SAME YEAR — In London, England, Brian London failed to land a single solid punch against heavyweight Cassius Clay and was knocked out in the third round.

Up to a week ago I'd never even heard of author Mario J. Sagola whose book, "The Naked Bishop", was on the shelf of new arrivals at the library when I last chose a few tomes for lunch-time and late evening perusals.

Having always been intrigued by anything on organized crime (Cosa Nostra, Mafia, whatever label it may be given), I was definitely a taker "on the book promised" a story set in 1961 when the armies of J. Edgar over's FBI and the two most powerful Mafia families in New York squared off to fight a battle that would last nearly 20 years."

An impressively researched story of a war that really happened, Sagola's novel centers on three dedicated law men who manipulate the rigidity of both "kingpins" and then find themselves the pawn of the man who does the job — the nephew of "The Bishop", Stephen Vernon. After undergoing a complete transformation both physically and mentally under the auspices of the FBI, Vernon emerges an entirely new man (his "safeguard from the mob) around whom the remainder of the tale is spun.

Murder, vendetta, dope, prostitution are all woven into the rather nerve-shattering story. The language is very explicit and often offensive but one would imagine it's the norm in the underworld.

THE BOTTOM LINE: A recession is when our neighbor is out of work; a depression is when we are.

Dining 'solo' need not be dull

The words, "a home-cooked meal," conjure up the images of a family gathered around the table with soup simmering in a kettle, chicken roasting and biscuits baking in the oven.

For 44 million Americans who live alone, however, that home-cooked meal is more likely to be a hastily prepared sandwich or snack. And according to the Census Bureau, the number of single-person households will continue to increase dramatically. They project that by 1990 more than one-quarter of all households will consist of only one person.

Why are some single householders deprived of a nutritionally sound meal? In a series of interviews with single people of all ages and backgrounds, Betsy Robertson, consumer adviser for the National Food Processors Association (NFPA), tried to find out.

"I can't be bothered cooking for myself," said one New York City bachelor. "I try to eat a good lunch and then at night I may pick up an order of spare ribs and fried rice from a Chinese restaurant and have a doughnut or ice cream for desert."

"With the wide variety of canned and other ready-to-eat foods available, dining alone need not result in a poor diet," Robertson said. She discovered that those she interviewed who planned a bit and shopped for food once a week had a reasonably well-balanced diet.

"One man I spoke with, a salesman from Des Moines, relied on some prepared foods and usually managed to put together a good meal in a half hour without doing a lot of fussing," the NFPA advisor said. He might heat up a can of chili, then add chopped raw onion and grated cheddar cheese or slice a couple of frankfurters and heat with a can of baked beans.

"Once a week he makes a meat loaf and then reheats it. Every night he creates a salad (his avowed specialty) that includes lots of fruit or vegetables. One favorite weather combo includes romaine lettuce, canned mandarin oranges and slivered almonds in a vinaigrette dressing with a teaspoon of honey added."

"You would expect that women living alone are able to cook for themselves," Robertson said. "However interviews with a group of single women ages 25 to 35 in the Los Angeles area showed that a number of them either ate dinner at restaurants or nibbled on cheese, fruit and crackers rather than cook anything."

"For people who absolutely can't or won't cook beyond heating a can, there's a bounty of canned soups that can be served as part of a quick and nutritious meal," Robertson said. "Chilled consommé madrilene is a delicious, low-calorie product that only requires a can opener to 'prepare' it. Beef bouillon with a slice of lemon floating on top is also low calorie but elegant."

Main dish salads are only a can opener away, if you keep salmon and sardines chilled in the refrigerator. Marinated mushrooms, pickled beets, smoked clams, olive salad and dill pickles, plus assorted bottled salad dressings and mayonnaise, can all provide colorful accompaniments to a salad plate. For quick hot potato salad, sliced canned potatoes can be heated in their own liquid, then drained and tossed with Italian dressing and bacon bits.

One resourceful woman, a marketing manager who travels two weeks out of every month, got tired of coming home to a refrigerator that was practically empty except for sour milk and shriveled lettuce. Robertson reported.

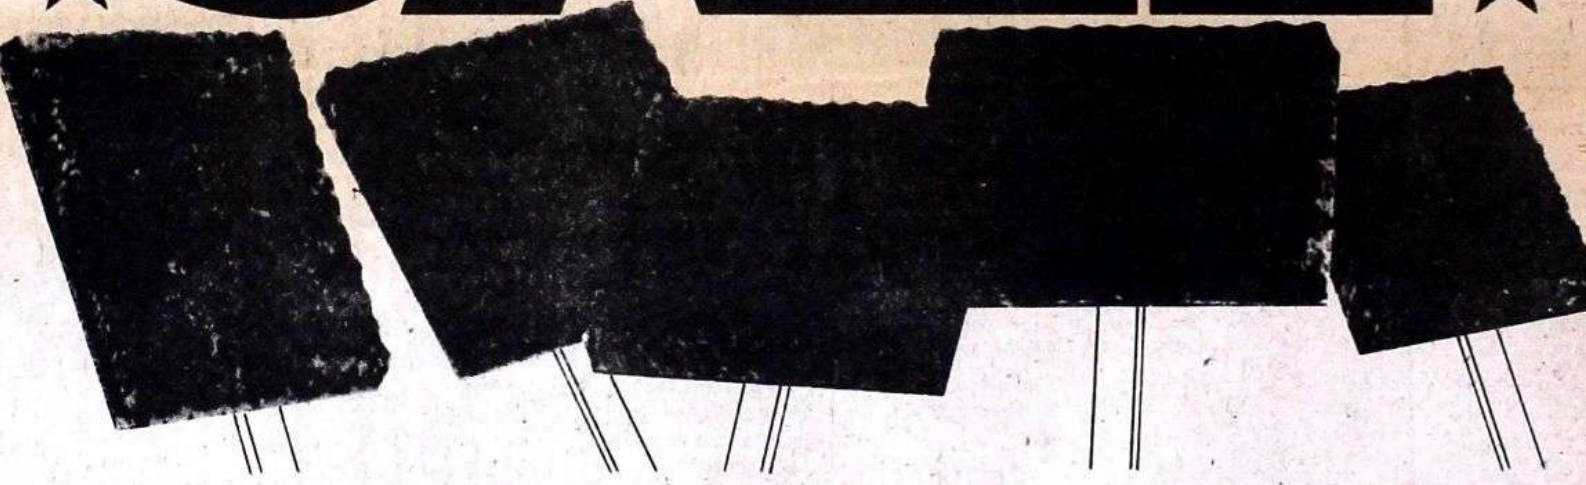

"She finally bought a set of one-serving casserole dishes, prepared a few of her favorite foods, such as pot roast and Italian meatballs, and portioned the servings before wrapping and freezing them. She also stocked up on packages of herb-flavored rice to cook while one of her homemade casseroles is heating in the oven."

"Now, when she returns from a trip, she doesn't have to forage for stale cookies," Robertson said. "her only regret is that there's no way to preserve lettuce."
